AND NOW A WORD FROM...

Finally! COMBO

IT'S HERE! IT'S HERE! The next generation of collectible magazines has arrived. Never again will you have to buy more than one price guide for your collectibles, because COMBO has it all. A comic book price guide, a non-sport card price guide, an action figure price guide, and the one that everyone seems to need these days, a gaming card price guide.

Back row: David Karp, Gloria Lewis, Ian M. Feller, Joseph Gallo. Front row: Douglas Kale, Diane Weber.

By now, I'm sure you know all this. You've probably seen our ads, gotten our letters or received our telepathic messages. That's why your holding this awe inspiring first issue. If only you knew what went into its production. Whew! But I'm not going to bore you with that. I have other ways to do that.

Within a short amount of time, COMBO will become the only place you'll to turn to for all the latest news, prices, and information on all the hot collectible areas. Why am I so sure? I put this baby together. Trust me, it's got something for everyone. COMBO will bring you hard hitting articles and columns that will make you think. After reading COMBO, you'll know stuff your friends won't know. We'll also have the coolest contests (where else can you win autographed Italian Spawn comics and Legends booster packs?), the best inserts and the bitchin'est flip covers. After reading this issue, if you're not completely satisfied, return the unused portion and we'll give it to someone else.

NOW, OUR PHILOSOPHY. We believe, first and foremost, in reading comics and enjoying the experience of collecting. That's why we'll stuff each issue with at least 180 pages. There'll be enough great stuff in here to keep you reading for a whole month. And make sure you do just that, read this !&*#n' magazine. You'll be glad you did. But if you think you're gonna find out how to get rich—forget it! If we knew that, we'd all be sipping piña coladas on a beach in Bermuda right now. Yeah, I know, there are price guides in here. Well, I didn't say you shouldn't know what something is worth, just make sure you read it or play with it, or learn from it or whatever. Then, if it increases in value, that's cool. Really cool! But please, remember, if someone knew which collectibles were going to be valuable—Why Would They Tell You? Alright that's enough of that.

I have just one last thing before I let you go explore each nook and cranny of COMBO #1. I want to thank the entire COMBO staff for putting in the countless long hours to get this off the ground, all the publishers and manufacturers whose support was essential to this first issue, and to all of you for believing, as we do, that COMBO is the next generation of collectible magazines. What are you waiting for? DIG IN!

DEAR COMBO...

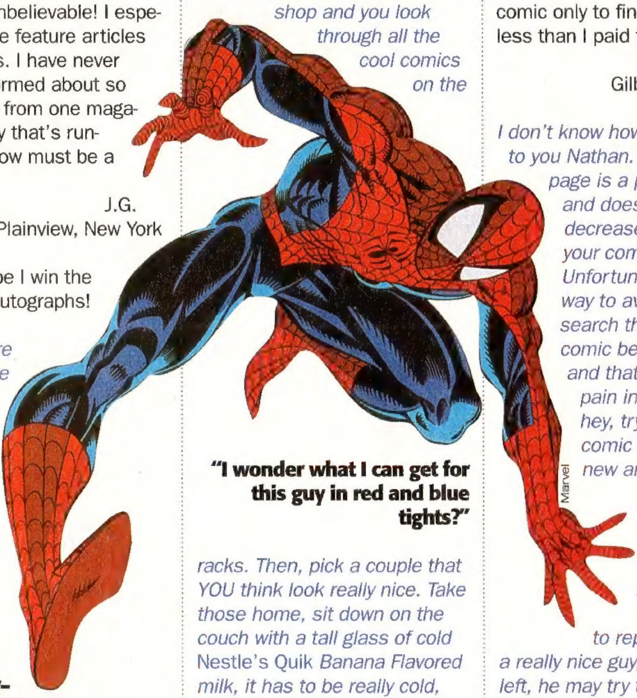
A fan?

I think your magazine is fantastic! Those cool flip covers are awesome and the color pages are unbelievable! I especially love the feature articles and columns. I have never been so informed about so many things from one magazine. The guy that's running your show must be a genius!

J.G.
Plainview, New York

P.S. I hope I win the McFarlane autographs!

Since you are the Executive Editor of COMBO, J.G., you are not eligible to enter the contests. Don't you have anything better to do?



"I wonder what I can get for this guy in red and blue tights?"

Marvel

The eternal question

I've been collecting comics since I was about 10-years-old and I still love them and like collecting them to this day.

My question to you is how do you know which ones will become valuable in the future? As a collector, I think you have to have a sort of instinct. Is that what collecting is really about?

Cedric Hardin
Chicago, Illinois

Well now Cedric, we seem to have hit upon a very interesting subject. You want to know how to pick the comics that are going to be valuable in the future. That question ranks up there with some other mysteries of the world, such as: Is there life after death? Are there really aliens? What was the name of the guy who played The Professor on Gilligan's Island*? But if you really want to know how, I'll tell ya.*

First, you go into a comic shop and you look through all the cool comics on the racks. Then, pick a couple that YOU think look really nice. Take those home, sit down on the couch with a tall glass of cold Nestle's Quik Banana Flavored milk, it has to be really cold, and do something amazing. Now pay attention, this is the secret, one that has been passed on to me from generation to generation. Are you ready? Okay. READ THE %&@N' THING! If you think it's good, then it's likely that other people will too. If other people like it, word will spread and lots of people will go out and try to find one and the price will go up. Do you get it, Cedric? Do you think if I could predict the future I'd be sitting here responding to letters? No way! I'd be siting on a tropical beach with a beautiful wom...ah, never mind.*

Didn't make the cut!

I've been collecting comic books for two years. One day I went to the local store and bought Superman #0. When I was reading it, I noticed one of the pages was miscut. Does a miscut page bring up or bring down the value of the comic? It would be disappointing to buy a comic only to find out it's worth less than I paid for it!

Nathan Brown
Gilbert, Minnesota

I don't know how to break this to you Nathan. The miscut page is a printing error and does indeed decrease the value of your comic. Unfortunately, the only way to avoid this is to search through every comic before you buy it and that can be a real pain in the neck. So hey, try this. If the comic is still fairly new and in good shape , try asking the friendly comic retailer who sold it to you to replace it. If he's a really nice guy, and has some left, he may try to keep a customer happy and do it. If not, chalk one up to experience.

I'm ready to sell

I am not a comic collector, but I have a lot of great comics from when I was a kid. I did collect then and the comics are still in great shape. I've got Amazing Fantasy #15, Amazing Spider-Man #1, Fantastic Four #1, lots of other low number Amazing Spider-Man's, plus many more. Now I am thinking of selling some of them, but I don't know how or where. Can you give me any ideas?

James Conroy
Fairfax, California

There are a few ways to sell comics. You could (a) bring them to your local comic shop and see if they'll buy them. You could (b) bring them to a convention and ask a dealer there to buy them. You could try (c), place a sell ad in a respected trade publication (don't mind the blatant plug). How about (d), look at the ads in a respected trade publication and try calling some of the advertisers, offering them the comics. Or (e), take a table at a convention and try to sell them yourself.

That should steer you in the right direction. Good luck!

Anybody interested in buying these?

I was wondering if you could help me. I have a few story ideas. These stories, I believe, would make good comic books, possibly even a few series of comic books. Would you know of any comic company that buys stories and story ideas outright? Would you know of any places which help develop story ideas into comic books? Anything you could provide me with would be greatly appreciated.

Jeffrey Henry
Mays Landing, New Jersey

The major publishers don't usually look for new story ideas that don't involve one of their characters, but there are plenty of upstart comic publishers that would probably welcome these types of ideas. If they were really good, they may even offer you a job. And who knows, this may be your "in" to the big guys.

A great way to meet these publishers is to bring the stories to a major convention and show them around. Ask the pros what they think. Most are quite receptive to helping out a beginner. And if this doesn't work, you could always find an artist and self publish!

No Coke, Pepsi!

I have bought all of the Coca-Cola series cards available to date and I recently heard about Pepsi cards. Can you tell me more about these?

The Pepsi card set you are interested in was recently produced by Dart Flipcards and consists of 100 cards in the regular set, which retails for about $15 to $18. There are also 10 different chrome cards that retail for $8 to $10 each, plus a double-sided foil card (one per case) that sells for about $50 to $60.

What's next, Dr. Pepper, Sprite, or A & W Root Beer*?*

Goofy What?

I remember reading about a set from Pacific Trading Cards called Goofy Monsters (a 110-card set?). Anyway, I really like Wacky Packages and Garbage Pail Kids cards, so since the Goofy Monsters set looked like it was in that same type of vein, I wanted to get them. What happened to them? Will they ever come out?

Kevin Feder
San Antonio, Texas

Goofy Monsters cards were never released by Pacific and the company is not really sure if the set will be coming out any time soon or even at all. We may never know if these cards would have been another set to add to the list of all-time favorites (or at least one of Kevin Feder's favorites). We'll just have to wait and see what happens. Although, I wouldn't hold my breath if I were you.

More Wars?

The new Star Wars Widevision cards from Topps are really great. The pictures are crystal clear and the wide shots offer a better and more interesting look at the scenes from the movie. I like the original 1977 Topps cards, but these really blow me away.

I was wondering, will there be widevision sets for the other Star Wars movies, too?

Jason Eastman
Orlando, Florida

That's a very good question Jason. As a matter of fact, Topps has hinted at more Star Wars Widevision sets to come very soon. Look for more details in future issues of COMBO.

Half n' Half

I recently bought a few packs of Fleer's Marvel Masterpieces cards and one of my Gold Foil Signature cards is half on and half off. Is this error worth anything more? Also, when is the second set coming?

Jeremy Witkin
Natick, Massachusetts

You do have a card with an error on it, but it isn't worth anything special. Usually, the only time an error card may be valuable is if there is an error in the text, like a misspelled name or a wrong title, that is later corrected in the production run. And then, supply and demand determine if collectors are willing to pay more for it.

In response to your second question: BE PATIENT! It'll be here before you know it. Meanwhile, enjoy what you've got.

MARVEL RESTRUCTURING

Marvel Comics is overhauling itself from top management positions down to the lowest ranks. The biggest changes, so far, are Tom DeFalco is no longer Editor-In-Chief of the Marvel Entertainment Group and Bruce Stein is no longer its President.

Marvel's calling this entire restructuring "Marvelution: The Art of Change!" Marvel states that these changes were necessary to keep pace with the rapid changes in the comic industry.

DeFalco's post is being replaced by four distinct character-driven groups, each with its own editors. Marvel also created three new editorial/administrative, marketing and sales positions plus they announced the launching of a new imprint, called Excelsior Comics.

The four editorial departments are:

New Marvel divisions includes one just for Spidey titles.

1. X-MEN: Featuring all the X-Books and headed by Bob Harras, who's title is Editor-In-Chief. This also includes the X-Men animated series and the live action film that is in development.

2. SPIDER-MAN: Focusing on guess who and related characters with Bob Budiansky as Editor-In-Chief. He is also responsible for TV and film projects in the works.

3. MARVEL UNIVERSE: Broken down into four subgroups: Marvel Heroes, Cosmic Powers, Edge, and 2099. Mark Gruenwald, Bobbie Chase and Carl Potts will now be titled Editorial Directors. More announcements regarding this group are coming in the near future.

4. GENERAL ENTERTAINMENT: Broken into Media, Action and Adventure, All Ages, and Humor. Again headed by Gruenwald, Chase and Potts. More announcements regarding this group are also coming in the near future.

According to Marvel, each group will operate like a small company under the editors-in-chief/editorial directors. These people will report directly to Terry Stewart, President and COO of the Marvel Comics division.

"We had to evolve the way we created and marketed our comics and managed our business," said Stewart. "Over the last three months I've focused solely on comic books, and have been able to study and rethink how everything works."

"[The Marvelution] will take us another step forward in the evolution of comic books. Reorganization of our comic book business will make each group's titles easier to develop, manage and promote. We've been clearly moving in this direction with our X-Men and Spider-Man titles, and our consumer research verifies that it is working. Now we're taking what's worked best, making it official, and extending it to our other titles."

Stan Lee to head Marvel's new Excelsior Comics.

"Ultimately, Marvelution is designed to make us more responsive to our retailers and, more importantly, to our fans," said Stewart. "It will enable our editorial, marketing and sales departments to work together to adapt to the market, to create better product and increase sales. It will encourage more editorial, marketing and sales creativity."

Stewart has gone on the record saying that fans can still expect a number of crossovers and guest appearances of various Marvel characters between the groups. Still, it looks like Marvel is going to take actions that will make each of these four groups distinctive from one another.

These actions include:

- A new storyline that will clearly position the group or theme, each title character within the group or theme, and the relationship between each character within group or theme.
- Distinctive trade dresses
- Other—undefined—features

"This is designed to go way beyond merely linking titles as part of families," said Stewart. "This is designed to give our retailers and readers very, very clear reasons why, through our editorial and production quality and values, they should buy, read and collect our comic books every month."

Stewart stated that a lot of these moves were made because of the way readers perceive Marvel's X- and Spider-books versus everything else. "Many of Marvel's other superhero titles are not perceived as separate product categories by the market and get lost in the shuffle. As a group, however, they outsell many high profile competitors who get much more trade attention."

"We're not done yet. This is a work in progress," warns Stewart. "We'll be making a steady stream of announcements, filling in the details as they develop, and we'll be communicating them to the industry and our fans through publications, mailings, conferences and meetings with distributors and retailers."

Marvel is interested in getting feedback from fans. Comments should be mailed and addressed to Marvelution: the individual groups (X-Men, Spider-Man, Marvel Universe, General Entertainment), c/o Marvel Entertainment Group, 387 Park Ave. South, New York, NY 10016.

As for Excelsior, that will be headed by Stan Lee. It will not be based out of Marvel's corporate offices in New York, but on the West Coast, near Lee's home. All Terry Stewart would say is that Excelsior will feature a small, tightly woven universe of characters.

Gaining a new position from all this is Jim Sokolowski. Sokolowski will now be Vice President, Editorial Planning/Operations and will assist Stewart in developing integrated editorial and sales/marketing programs.

Closing out the position shuffle, Stewart hired consultant Richard Rogers as Executive Vice President, Marketing and Sales. Reporting to Rogers are Matt Ragone, Vice President of Direct Sales; Bob Kerekes, Director of Mass Marketing Sales; and Sven Larsen, Director of Marketing.

As for DeFalco, Marvel states he's been offered a Senior Vice President position, but as of this writing there has been no word whether he has accepted it or not.

The Marvel Entertainment Group has also officially announced that its president, Bruce Stein, resigned. Stein had been with M.E.G. for just short of four months.

Marvel stated that Stein left them due to "fundamental differences."

According to The Wall Street Journal and other reports, all operations that used to report to Stein will now report to his superior, William Blevins. Blevins is Marvel's Chief Executive Officer and reports directly to owner Ron Perelman.

New X-Men division headed by Bob Harras.

Marvel Acquires Welsh

Marvel Entertainment Group has agreed to acquire Welsh Publishing Group Inc., which publishes a series of children's magazines based on popular licensed characters and is an investor in both Bongo and Hamilton Comics.

The 51 percent stake in the firm they acquired extends Marvel's depth in the children's publishing business. Donald Welsh, the company's founder and president, will still hold 49 percent of the company. Welsh will stay with Marvel as Executive Vice President. Not only will he supervise Welsh publications, but also supervise the already existing Marvel licensed magazines Pro Action and Spider-Man Magazine. "Marvel is now in a position to take any number of products from a licenser and exploit them," said Jerry Calabrese, Marvel's president of consumer marketing. "Don was a pioneer in doing licensed magazines."

An interesting side note to all this is Bongo just fulfilled its contract with Welsh and is now a free agent. It can negotiate with whomever Bongo head Matt Groening cares to.

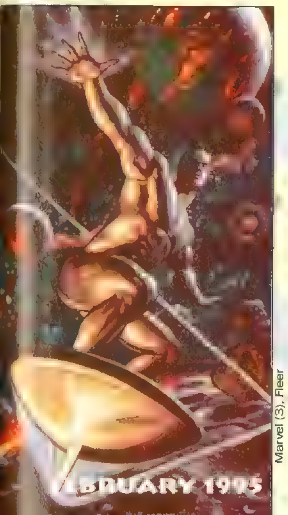
Bongo was obligated to provide 18 titles to Welsh in a period of one year. They did it. Bongo and Welsh were just getting ready to renew their deal when the latter was acquired by Marvel.

"Obviously, we want to continue our relationship with the people at Welsh," said Jason Grode, managing editor for Bongo. "At the moment the Welsh people are moving to Marvel and so we are starting to talk to Marvel. We want to see if it's possible to continue that relationship with the Welsh people.

"People are confused by all this because it isn't really a matter of renegotiating," adds Grode. "It's more a question of whether Welsh's investing in Bongo meant they had a stake in the company, which wasn't the case. Bongo is 100 percent owned by Matt Groening. We are not a creator-owned imprint. In the case of most creator-owned imprints, like say Legend, The Dark Horse imprint shows up on any Legend title. Welsh's imprint never showed up on any Bongo title. We want the same thing if we do end up working with Marvel. Marvel's name won't appear anywhere."

Grode stated that something is in the works, though, and he feels confident that a full announcement will be made in short time.

As of press time, there is no news as to the status of Hamilton Comics.



Silver Surfer is now part of the Cosmic Powers subgroup under the Marvel Universe division.

The X-Shakeup

Marvel fans have been kicking up a storm since the announcement that Legion was going back in time and killing Charles Xavier, the man who founded the X-Men.

Of course, if the Professor is X'd, that kind of changes the entire scope and history of the title. As such, Marvel announced there will be a new series of "Mutant" titles starting this month. See "What's New in Comics" for more information.

The Mutant books will live with these changes through April. Marvel has yet to announce what it will then do in May.

"There seems to be some panic out there in the comic community on what we've done to the X-Men," said Director of Marketing Sven Larsen. "People are likening this to DC's Zero Hour, but I would say the scenario is closer to the X-Men's 'Days of Future Past' storyline which showed what would happen if Charles Xavier's dream had gone terribly wrong. That storyline shows what life would be like if that dream never existed."

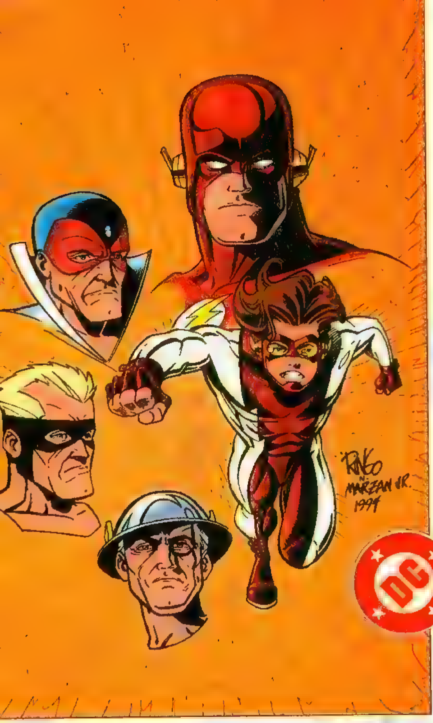
"The X-Men have faced and survived threats from alternate futures before," added Larsen. "This time they're facing a threat from an alternative past. When the whole thing is resolved in April, X-Men fans should be very happy."

"The reason that we changed the titles of the books is because it is no longer the same thing that you've been reading for 30 years," adds X-writer Fabien Nicieza, "and yet it's exactly the same thing you've been reading for 30 years.

"What we've tried to liken it to is if you took a quarter out of your pocket and you stared at the head side for 30 years. We're just flipping the coin and showing you the tails. We're showing you the other side of the coin. It's always been that way. We're just showing you the world for the first time and the events spring forth logically from previous X-Men continuity. They will quite logically revert back to the continuity that the readers have known all along. Having seen this other side of the coin, all readers will see the possibilities and potentials in all the characters that have only been talked about, have barely been glimpsed, never mentioned or imagined."

Marvel Buys Malibu

This just in! Just when you think things are quieting down at Marvel, Malibu Comics announces that they have been acquired by the big M—and everyone is happy about it! Coming in the next issue of COMBO, quotes from Marvel President Terry Stewart, Malibu's President and soon-to-be Senior Executive Vice President of Marvel, Scott Rosenberg, and a lot more about what this all means.

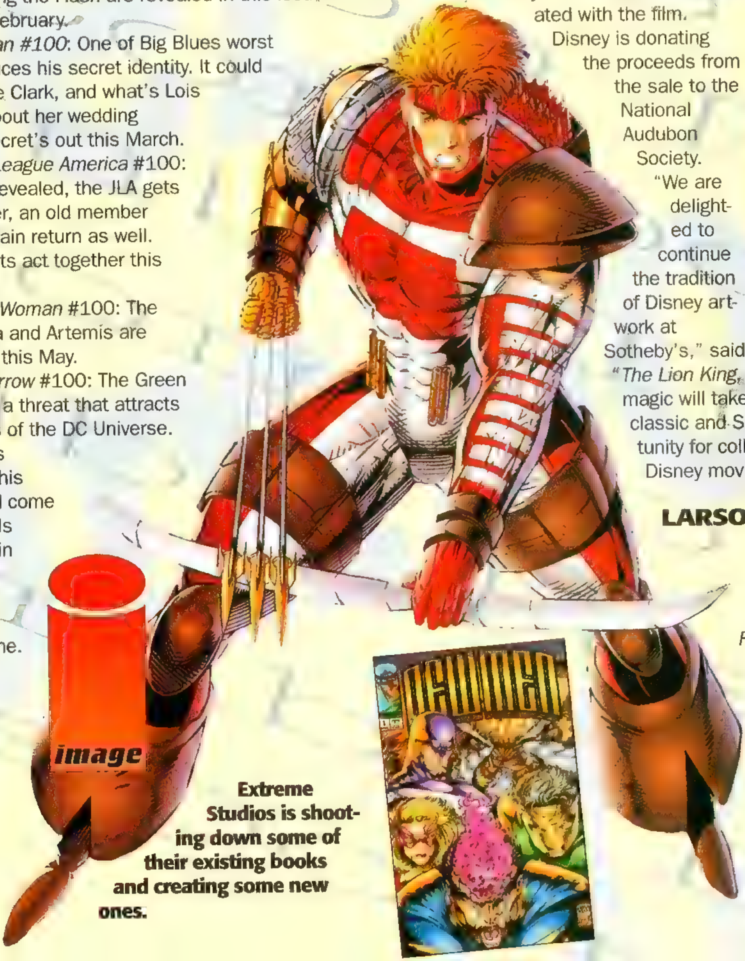


Flash #100 tops DC's own top 100 list.

DC DOING THEIR OWN TOP 100S IN 1995

It looks like number 100 issues are going to take center stage in DC's plans for 1995. Five of their major titles will reach their centennial issues this year. They include the following:

- Flash #100: Wally West has gone past the limit and "someone" has to take on his job. The final secrets of being the Flash are revealed in this issue. It all crashes this February.
- Superman #100: One of Big Blues worst enemies deduces his secret identity. It could mean no more Clark, and what's Lois going to do about her wedding plans? The secret's out this March.
- Justice League America #100: Ice's past is revealed, the JLA gets a new member, an old member and an old villain return as well. The JLA gets its act together this April.
- Wonder Woman #100: The fates of Diana and Artemis are finally settled this May.
- Green Arrow #100: The Green Arrow unveils a threat that attracts all the heroes of the DC Universe. It even makes Supey forget his problems and come lend a hand. Is this the lead in for the summer's big event? We'll find out in June.



Extreme Studios is shooting down some of their existing books and creating some new ones.

EXTREME KILLS ITSELF

Extreme Studios announced that by the end of January, all its titles will cease to be.

Extreme's all-issue crossover called Extreme Sacrifice promises to tie up any and all loose ends and results in the destruction of all Extreme titles and at least half their characters.

"Prophet #7 and Youngblood #10 are the key issues, setting the final stages," says editor Eric Stephenson.

Hints were dropped over the last few years in some of the Extreme titles including Youngblood #0, Prophet #1, Youngblood #6, the Extreme Prejudice books and Newmen #1 and #7. Among the "events" in the nine-part Extreme Sacrifice are the revealing of Bloodstrike's true identity and the final fate of Chapel and Extreme.

The recent introduction of such new characters as Lt. Colonel Bravo, Pilot, Troll, Roman, the Newmen and the new Bloodstrike was heralding the beginning of this major event.

After all is said and done, Extreme's new arc will be called The New Order and it will start in February. The surviving and new titles that will be part of Extreme's line-up include: Bloodstrike, Brigade (with only Troll surviving the original), Knightmare, Legend of Supreme, The Mark, Newmen, Prophet, and Chapel.

SOTHEBY'S TO AUCTION LION KING ART

Sotheby's announced it will be auctioning artwork from Disney's The Lion King on February 11, 1995.

Items going on the block include one-of-a-kind cel set ups, original handpainted backgrounds/production overlays and other art associated with the film.

Disney is donating the proceeds from the sale to the National Audubon Society.

"We are delighted to continue the tradition of Disney artwork at Sotheby's," said Sotheby Senior VP David Redden. "The Lion King, with its excitement, humor and magic will take its place as another great Disney classic and Sotheby's sale offers a unique opportunity for collectors to acquire their own piece of Disney movie history."

LARSON ENDING THE FAR SIDE

The Far Side creator Gary Larson said he'll cease drawing his daily comic strip at the end of 1994. The Far Side is one of the most popular comics in the publishing world, being syndicated in nearly 2,000 newspapers. The last panel will make its appearance on January 1, 1995.

"As for the reasons for my retirement, they mostly center around simple fatigue and a fear that if I continue for many more years my work will begin to suffer," said Larson, "or at the very least ease

Larson will concentrate on doing The Far Side books and other material instead of the strip.

BONE JOINS THE WILDC.A.T.S!

Fone Bone gets grim and gritty as he becomes the newest member of the WildC.A.T......Okay....just foolin'....Sorta. Actually, Jim Lee and Jeff Smith are doing a particularly different tradeoff. They are exchanging artwork. Smith is doing a cover for this month's WildC.A.T.s. Adventures Sourcebook. Lee is doing a pin-up for Bone featuring Fone as a member of the WildC.A.T.s.

"I have loads of admiration for the work he produces."

"Jeff has impressed me both as an artist and as a small press publisher," said Jim Lee. "I have loads of admiration for what he stands for, as well as for the work he produces. He is certainly one of the best of the new generation of comic artists that has come up over the last few years, and it's great to be able to work with him this way."

No date has been set for the Lee contribution to Bone.

A VALIANT PREDICTION COMES TRUE

A major event predicted in Rai #0 comes true when Valiant presents the Harbinger Wars...oddly enough in another title.

The Harbinger Wars will take place in Timewalker #6 through #8. It all kicks in when Ivar accidentally (of course) drops into the middle of them in the Twenty-First Century. Harada has finished assembling his Harbinger army to rule the planet. What he hadn't counted on was a resistance movement lead by Zephyr. Ivar finds himself in the DMZ between the two groups.

"I'm really excited that I have the chance to tackle an event that is so important to the Valiant continuity," says writer Kevin VanHook. "It's a dark and violent era in Valiant history which fans have been clamoring to see."

"This is NOT an alternative future story," VanHook adds, putting a rub on its competition. "The story spans hundreds of years of Valiant history. It's going to be the real thing."

Timewalker #6 ships this month.

1996 OLYMPICS APPOINT FILM ROMAN AS OFFICIAL ANIMATION STUDIO

The 1996 Olympics, which will be held in Atlanta, has appointed Film Roman, Inc. as its official animation studio.

Among the projects in the works are three half-hour animated specials that are currently in pre-production. They will star the Olympics mascot Izzy, who will cover the history of the modern event.

"We're delighted and honored to have been chosen by the International Olympics Committee to develop and create the animated character Izzy," said Film Roman founder Phil Roman. "We hope to inspire children the world over to be more interested in the Olympics. We're giving Izzy the appeal, the fun and the energy of other animated characters they see on television."

WIZARDS OF THE COAST DOING CYBERPUNK SET

Wizards of the Coast and R. Talsorian Games announced a joint project that will produce a Deckmaster product based on R. Talsorian's role playing game, Cyberpunk 2020. This is WotC's first cyberpunk trading card game. Entitled The Netrunner, it was designed by Richard Garfield, who developed Magic: The Gathering and Jyhad. "I've been excited about the prospect of doing a netrunning Deckmaster game since the release of Magic," said Garfield. "Netrunner will take place on a futuristic computer net and will focus on future hackers called Netrunners in the Cyberpunk 2020 world. The cards in the game will include programs, equipment and environments found in this world."

WotC has also started a book line published as part of the Harper Collins Prism line of science-fiction/fantasy titles, based on Magic: The Gathering. The books feature all the characters, magics and locales used in the various card sets.

Valiant Comics

In Visitor* #2, the battle with The Harbinger is concluded, and we see that even the mighty Visitor is not unstoppable. We also meet former Air Force Major Michael Benson. Drummed out of the USAF for publicly commenting on UFO sightings, Benson now leads a group of "believers" who will do anything to prove aliens are visiting our planet. What better "proof" than the detailed report on the physiology of The Visitor?

Visitor #2

Following the events in Magnus #33, Timewalker finds himself transported to Earth in 1992. It is a time when all the heroes are off fighting Unity, and Timewalker is caught in the crossfire between Harada's superpowered Harbinger strike force and the H.A.R.D. Corps, including the now deceased Maniac. Timewalker Yearbook* #1 offers a glimpse at the birth of the superhero era in the Valiant Universe.

X-O Manowar is exhausted. Having barely survived "The Wolfbridge Affair" and still at a standstill in his relationship with Randy, he heads down to the Big Easy for a well-deserved vacation. Things don't remain quiet for long, as X-O and his assistant Ken become entangled with New Orleans' champion of the night, Shadowman. The story in X-O Manowar* #42 continues next month in Shadowman.

In Eternal Warrior* #33, someone is killing the Eternal Warrior's closest friends and associates, and all clues point to the Eternal Warrior, making him the prime suspect. Already on shaky ground with the NYPD, the Warrior becomes a fugitive who is to be brought in—dead or alive. For New York's Finest, it's easier said than done. Can the Eternal Warrior even trust his friend Lieutenant Morgan, and more importantly, can he discover who is really killing his friends?

In Ninjak* #15, Ninjak concludes his battle with the White Wolf, a genetically enhanced Webnet agent who has one goal; kill Ninjak. The White Wolf's superior strength and toughness may allow him to reach his goal. The two battle in a French chateau, as Ninjak attempts to destroy Webnet's communication and computer network.

Eternal Warrior #33

Timewalker lands in 1995 in Timewalker* #16, and finds Harada and Zephyr locked in a strategic battle, with the future of all Harbingers and humanity hanging in the balance. Harada is determined to wipe out all Harbingers who won't take part in his new order. Zephyr is just as determined to keep Harbingers and all humans free from Harada's domination. Events first related in Rai #0 are fleshed out in this epic battle, with the future of the Valiant Universe in jeopardy. You also begin to learn the fate of Sting, last seen in Harbinger #25.

Bloodshot #27

The original experiment which transformed Angelo Mortalli into Bloodshot was never completed, thanks to Geoff the Geomancer, who helped Bloodshot escape. Yoshi Iwatsu has vowed to finish the work of his father; as a result: Bloodshot completes his transformation into the ultimate killing machine in Bloodshot* #27, part 1 of "Bloodshot Rampage."

The Secret Weapons are sent by Neville Alcott to capture the "enhanced" Bloodshot. In training exercises, Bloodshot has humbled the Secret Weapons on more than one occasion. This time, however, Bloodshot wants to kill them. In Secret Weapons* #20, part 2 of "Bloodshot Rampage," one of the Secret Weapons team will not come out of this battle intact.

Ranma 1/2

After his return to Maison Ikkoku in Maison Ikkoku* Part 4 #1, Yusaku falls ill. With the constant stream of caring neighbors in and out of his room, there's hardly any chance for recovery! Eventually, life returns to normal (whatever that means), but then it starts to look as though Yusaku may not reach his third Christmas at Maison Ikkoku after all.

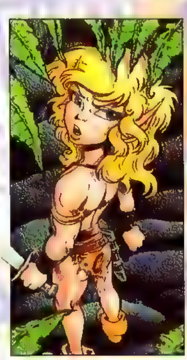
Centuries ago, the rock-shaping elf known as Door was part of a sinister plan at a place known as Blue Mountain. Blue Mountain fell, but Door lived on. Now, he is the absolute ruler of the Hoan G'tay Sho, a city of humans who consider him to be their god. Door now has the chance to recreate the home he left behind—an opportunity he fully intends to take advantage of! Meanwhile, a human army is marching on the sun village and the reunited New Blood must decide whether to stay and oppose Door, or return to their desert home. Elfquest: New Blood* #25 is the lead-in to an all new storyline: "The Doorwar Saga."



Elfquest: New Blood

Before assuming his role as leader of the Wolfriders, the elf known as Mantricker spent much of his time spying and playing tricks on humans. However, the joke is on the elf when a certain young human female finds his pranks to be... cute. Soon she is venturing deeper and deeper into the forest in search of her "hero." Can Mantricker find a way to rid himself of this admirer without revealing the secret location of the Father Tree? Find out in Elfquest: Blood of Ten Chiefs* #14.

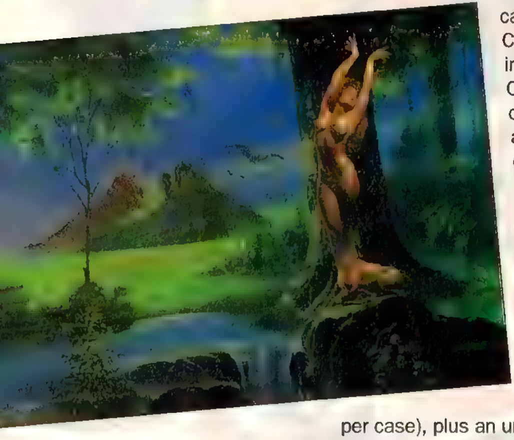
WHAT'S NEW IN NON-SPORT CARDS

Comic Images

■ The Best of Boris All-Chromium Collection by Comic Images features 80 of his most breathtaking works from his first four series, plus nine never-before-seen images and a checklist to round out the 90-card set. Chase cards include: six OmniChrome cards, 500 autographed cards (with a certificate of authenticity on the card back), a three-card "Triad-miration" set, a Medallion card (four per case), plus an uncut six-card strip (one per case).



Best of Boris All- Chromium

Seven cards are in each pack, with 36 packs per each 12 box case.

■ Comic Images retells the time-honored tale of Prince Valiant, an all-time classic comic character, with the 90-card Prince Valiant Collector Cards series, featuring the artwork of creator Hal Foster. Randomly inserted chase cards include: six Chromium cards, 500 24-Karat gold autographed cards (with a certificate of authenticity on the card back), a three-card "Funny Pages" set (one card per box), a Medallion card (four per case), a mini five inch by seven inch press sheet, plus an uncut six-card strip of Prince Valiant art (one per case).

Cornerstone Communication

■ Who is that again? That's right, Dr. Who II. The 110-card second series of Dr. Who trading cards from Cornerstone Communications was recently released. The first series sold out in only six weeks, so it is probable that Whovians everywhere are hungry for more. The full-color set includes stills from the BBC photo archives. Random insert cards are also included, but were not revealed at the time of this writing.

Fleer

■ Fleer has released a 10-card set of six and one half inch by 10 inch prints called UltraPrints, which capture the art from the Ultra X-Men '95 card set. Some of the characters depicted include Bishop by Boris Vallejo, Cable by Peter Scanlan, and Cyclops by Mark Sasso. The UltraPrints are shrink-wrapped in a clear plastic box with the top of the box open to allow for the prints to be pulled out for closer inspection. The suggested retail price is $1.49 per print. According to Fleer, quantities have been very limited, but no exact numbers have been released.

■ Fleer has also produced a 100-card Ultra Skeleton Warriors set based on the new CBS animated show. The set is broken down into nine subsets featuring all major characters and events from the TV series. Three limited edition chase card sets include 10 Suspended Animation Plastic cards, nine Power Blast cards, and Luma Bone cards (Fleer's first glow-in-the-dark cards).

FPG

- FPG has entered into a licensing agreement with TSR to produce trading cards utilizing TSR's immense volume of first rate artwork. TSR is known for its best selling role-playing game, Dungeons and Dragons. Some of the artists who have worked with TSR in the past include Clyde Caldwell, Jeff Easley, Larry Elmore, Keith Parkinson, and more.

The first release from the new alliance is the Art of Jeff Easley, which compiles all of Easley's best pieces from yesterday and today in a 90-card set (on a thicker 18 point stock). Bonus cards include five randomly inserted "Metallic Storm" cards and 1,000 signed and numbered foil-stamped autograph cards. Also, anyone who purchases a case receives a 10-card autographed sheet.

In March, a card series entitled The Fantasy Art of Clyde Caldwell will also be released and in May a series based on the art of TSR artist Brom will additionally be produced.

- FPG has announced that they will switch from 14 to 18 point stock on all of their regular series as of January 1995. The "FPG Gold" line of cards will continue to be 24 point stock with laminate.
- FPG has also produced a 90-card set (18 point stock) featuring the work of Barclay Shaw. Shaw has done numerous paintings for Starlog magazine and has also done illustrations for books by top authors such as Robert Heinlein, Ray Bradbury, Harlan Ellison, and Edgar Rice Burroughs.

As usual, bonus cards include five randomly inserted "Metallic Storm" cards and 1,000 signed and numbered foil-stamped autograph cards. Also, anyone who purchases a case receives a 10-card autographed sheet.

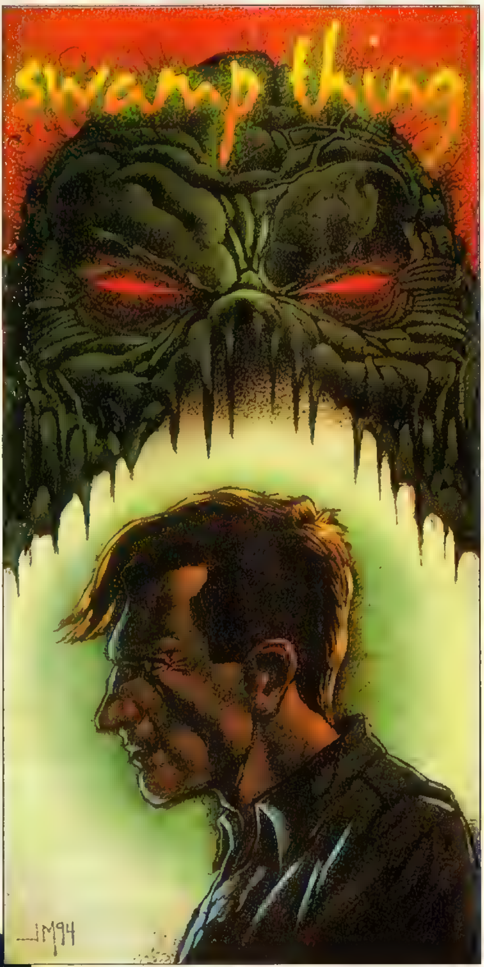
SkyBox

- The new DC/Vertigo 90-card set from SkyBox features oversized trading cards with never-before-seen depictions of characters from titles such as The Sandman, Hellblazer, Books of Magic, and Swamp Thing. This set follows in the successful footsteps of the oversized sell-out The Sandman trading cards released by SkyBox last February.

Forty-two of the cards highlight the best of DC/Vertigo cover art with story synopses on the cards backs. The other 47 cards have original, fully painted character portraits by top artists.

Six randomly inserted bonus cards are foil-enhanced, fully-painted portraits of John Constantine, Tim Hunter, The Sandman, Shade the Changing Man, Swamp Thing, and the Golden Age Sandman (found 1:18 packs). The other bonus card is a limited edition SkyDisc holographic card, numbered SD4, the fourth in a series of special SkyDiscs (found 1:180 packs), featuring the popular Sandman character—Death. The card shows her sitting beside a tombstone, but as the card is turned the picture changes to a close-up view of Death, who winks at the viewer. Pretty cool.

Swamp Thing from DC/Vertigo.



Skybox

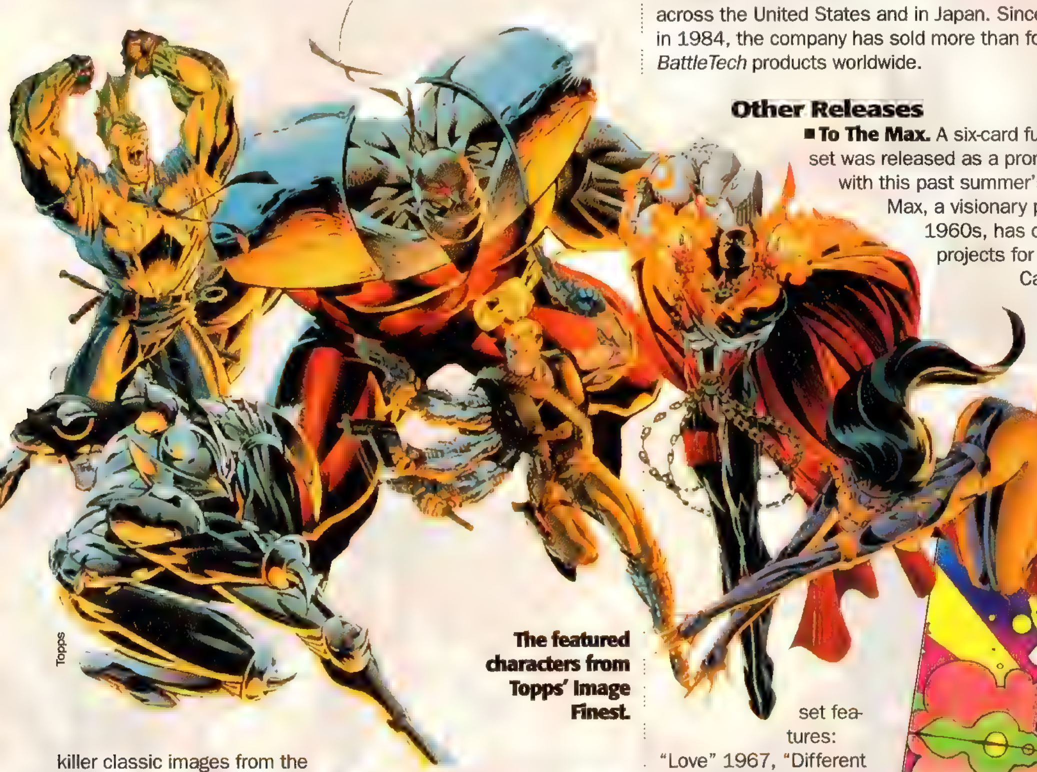
The suggested retail price for each six-card pack is $1.99.

Topps

■ The Topps Finest Image Universe: Founders Series includes all six Image Comics founders—Larsen, Lee, Liefeld, McFarlane, Silvestri, and Valentino. The 90-card Topps Finest chrome card set features both all-new art and killer classic images from the hottest Image comics.



Topps

The featured characters from Topps' Image Finest.

Inserted in every case is one poster of the Image star characters, drawn by J. Scott Campbell and Alex Garner. Randomly inserted in packs are six different Clearzone Chrome cards plus 12 different chromium cards that feature "some secret surprises"—how would the artists react if their characters met them on the street?

■ Due to the poor collation of Topps' Universal Monsters and Mars Attacks Archives card series, Topps offered dealers a special redemption plan that expired last month. For each box purchased of either one set or the other (10 box limit), Topps exchanged a maximum of 25 duplicate cards per box—common cards only, not chase cards. Topps also stated that they will make every effort to ensure that this problem will not arise again. Whether or not this "redeems" Topps' big goof is yet to be determined.

Wizards of the Coast

■ Together with R. Talsorian Games, Wizards of the Coast (WotC) announced a license agreement to produce Deckmaster product based on R. Talsorian's role-playing game, Cyberpunk 2020. The game is tentatively titled Netrunner, which takes place on a futuristic computer net and will focus on future hackers called netrunners in the Cyberpunk 2020 world. The cards in the game are the programs, equipment, and environments found in this world.

Based on ideas from cyberpunk literature and William Gibson's Neuromancer, the Cyberpunk 2020 role-playing game mirrors a virtual reality experience where players act as computer hackers directly interfacing with a computer net via neuro plugs. Is that perfectly clear?

■ WotC and FASA Corporation have signed an agreement to create a Deckmaster game based on the BattleTech role-playing system. BattleTech has filtered into the video game, toy, and entertainment industries. "Virtual World Centers", based on BattleTech, exist across the United States and in Japan. Since the game's release in 1984, the company has sold more than four million units of BattleTech products worldwide.

Other Releases

■ To The Max. A six-card full-color Peter Max set was released as a promotion in conjunction with this past summer's Woodstock 1994. Max, a visionary pop artist of the 1960s, has done paintings and projects for presidents Ford, Carter, Reagan, and Bush, and has even more recently redesigned NBC's symbolic peacock. The set features: "Love" 1967, "Different Drummer" 1968, "Great Wave" 1990, "Cosmic Jumper" 1990, "A Beautiful Summer Day" 1969, and "Cosmic Flyer with Doves" 1992.

■ Femme Fatale. The latest entry to the Shel-Tone Bloody Visions murderer card sets is entitled Bloody Visions 3: Lady Killers. Included in the set are Lizzie Borden, Ma Barker, and other deranged females. Each set contains 36 cards printed in black, white and blood red, plus each set comes with a bonus subset for a future Shel-Tone release entitled Love Hurts: Crimes of Passion. Each set has a suggested retail price of $12.95.

THE MAN W WOULDN'T

A COMBO INTERVIEW WITH TODD MCFARLANE

BY BUDDY SCALERA

TODD MCFARLANE IS widely regarded as one of the most powerful individuals in the comics industry. He and his Image co-founders made publishing history with their very public departure from Marvel in 1992. His first Image venture, Spawn, is a consistent favorite among comic fans.

Todd talked with COMBO recently about his start in comics, his future plans for Spawn and what he will say on his death bed.

COMBO: Where were you born and raised?
TODD McFARLANE: I was born in Calgary, Alberta, Canada on March 16, 1961. I grew up in Southern California and in the San Jose, California area for the most part before we moved back to Calgary when I was about 14.

COMBO: How did you get your start in comics?
TM: Same as everybody else. Just flogged the mailboxes with my samples and sent it off to the editors and went to conventions and bugged people. After bugging the crap out of them for about a year and a half, they finally acquiesced and said, 'Okay, kid. You stop bugging us and we'll give you a job.' Just hard work and a lot of determination and not taking 'no' for an answer.

COMBO: What was your first published work?
TM: The first published work was...actually they both came out the same day. You remember these things. It was mid-February of '85 and it was an issue of Infinity Inc. #14, which had been done months after the other book that also came out that week, which was Steve Englehart's Coyote from Marvel Epic.

COMBO: What would you have done if you hadn't done comics?
TM: I've got a degree in graphic arts. My dad's in the printing trades business. I was planning on following my dad's footsteps in the printing business. That was one of the reasons why when we made the break from Marvel to Image I knew that we could pull it off. The one thing they didn't think we had was technological insights and I had grown up around it.

COMBO: What were your influences inside and outside of comics?
TM: In terms of the comic books, I got into them kind of late, so it was who was hot at the time like John Byrne and George Perez and a little bit later Frank

Image

HO GIVE IN...

I'M BETTER THAN THAT!

Miller. Jack Kirby's a big influence, but he's an influence not so much in drawing style, but in terms of the energy that he brought to his pages. I tried to duplicate some of that stuff when I was on the Hulk and Spider-Man.

COMBO: When kids come up to you and say they want to draw comics, what do you tell them?
TM: I say to them the thing I used to hate when [the editors] said it to me. Continue to draw. You can't get any better unless you're doing it. Some kids just aren't ready. I've seen some kids that look like they're on the verge, but they never apply themselves and they don't get any better. Then you get another kid that can't draw his way out of a paper bag, but he keeps drawing and six months, eight months, a year goes by and you wouldn't even recognize that it was the same kid.

Spawn, Violator, Medieval Spawn and the Spawn Mobile -- Spawn's favorite toys.

COMBO: Was there ever a point when you were a kid where you almost gave up?
TM: Nope. I'm the guy who fights against the 'no.' I was going to give it only so much time and I was going to self-publish.

COMBO: We have Spawn and the Violator. What are some of the other things that you have up your sleeve?
TM: We've got the Angela mini-series, which is a spin-off of a character that Neil Gaiman and I co-created. Most of the stuff that occupies my time isn't really comic book related. I started the new toy company [Todd Toys, Inc.] and that takes up a lot of my time. I do a lot of stuff in Hollywood. Since I own the rights to it, I'm the one who's controlling all of the merchandising stuff. I've got plans to start a textile company. My goal is to take these things that I've created in comic books and see if I can't bring them out to the world and say, 'look at what we do in comic books. It's neat stuff. Don't look at us as being little geeks.'

COMBO: What's the scoop on the Spawn video game?
TM: We're doing a Super Nintendo version, a Sega Genesis version, a Sega CD, PC CD-ROM and Sony PSX version. According to my contract, that stuff has to hit by the summer of '95. Sony Imagesoft's been working on it for a long time.

COMBO: What can fans of Spawn expect to see in the comic in 1995?
TM: For 1995, Greg Capullo is going to come onto the book and help me on some of the artwork so that we can keep the pace of the book a lot better than I've been doing the last couple of years. He'll take a big burden away from me. We'll tag team and try to become the 'team supreme.' I'm going to try to move Spawn into a direction where he's going to get back to the reason of why he's on Earth, which is trying to hunt down his wife. Then he's going to try and come to grips with: if he can't have his wife, what's the reason for him to go on and what's his purpose in the whole scheme of life, so to speak. At the same time, I'll bring a couple of new characters into the book that will eventually spin off into their own toys. If everything goes okay there'll be an animated Spawn on TV, too.

COMBO: What sort of relationship do you maintain with the other Image creators?
TM: Oh, I love 'em! We talk all the time. I'm going to be making their toys. Unfortunately the downside of us being ambitious punks is that we're all busy, so we don't get to see each other as much as we like. We have our meetings and our last meeting actually was at my house, where everybody came up to my house and we hung out for a few days and did the big slumber party and stuff.

COMBO: How come we haven't seen any major Image crossovers yet?
TM: Part of it is because of scheduling. We're not the best in the world at that. I really haven't defined what Spawn is to a lot of people so I'm not really con-

Fallen Empires

In the southern oceans of Dominia Prime lay a continent of great kingdoms. Far from the war between Urza and Mishra, the lands of Sarpadia prospered. But as the climate changed, resources dwindled and empires crumbled. Hideous new species arose in the forests and seas, forcing the Sarpadians to fight for their very survival; Icatian towns mustered Phalanxes to defend themselves from Orcish raiders and the misbegotten spawn of uncontrolled black magic. Recruit these toughened warriors and vicious predators for your Magic: The Gathering duels, but beware lest you fare no better than the Fallen Empires.

cerned with Spawn meeting up with WildC.A.T.s or something until I get to that point.

COMBO: Any intentions of doing other inter-company crossovers like Spawn/Batman?
TM: The obvious one would be Spawn/ Spider-Man. He'd be the only one that I'd go, 'Yeah, that makes sense.' He'd be kind of a cool guy to do, but for right now it's tough enough to just get the regular book out there. Unfortunately, when I did Spawn/ Batman, I had to leave the regular book and I don't like doing that that often.

COMBO: What was the strangest untrue rumor that you've ever heard about yourself?
TM: That I've been dead. Some of them have been pretty good, 'I heard it on CNN!' First off, I'm not dead and even if I was I doubt CNN would care.

COMBO: Let's play fill in the blanks: If I had to color both love and hate, the colors I'd choose would be…
TM: Love I'd color red just like a nice big heart. And hate…when you get pissed off your blood boils, so it's also a red color. It's just a real intense red with lots of veins popping out of it. They both come from the same place ultimately.

COMBO: If I could meet any person living or dead, it would be…
TM: I'm intrigued by people like Martin Luther King and people who tried to break away like Jackie Robinson, who had the weight of a country and the weight of a race on his shoulder and somehow managed to survive. To me those guys are amazing people. Basically they risked their life and their livelihood and their happiness just to make their point and to try and help others.

COMBO: If I were standing on a desert island and I could have with me three of my current possessions and one other person, family members excluded, I would choose…
TM: Hmm. What do I need? I don't need much. I'm pretty simple. I'd probably take a soft bed, an electric refrigerator so we could keep the food cold, and probably my ball glove so I could play. And the person I'd want to have out there, you're telling me to exclude my family, but ultimately I can't really see myself without my family.

COMBO: In the end, with my last dying breath, my words shall be…
TM: That I never surrendered. That I was my own man. If that comes across as being egotistical at least I can go to my grave knowing that I wasn't bought and that I didn't have to sit there and have people tell me what to do. So I would just put, 'I'm free. I'm free.'

SPAWN – A MOVIE STAR?

BY ROB ALLSTETTER

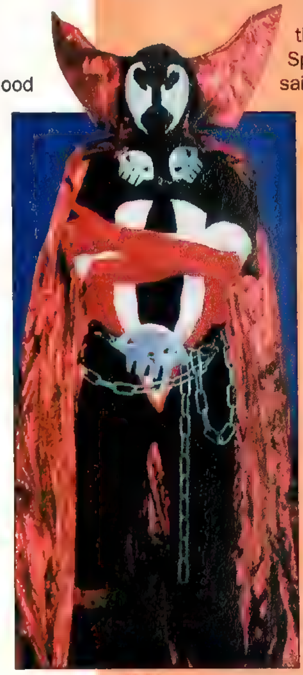
Those rumors you keep hearing about a Spawn live-action movie and an animated series? They're true.

Al Simmons, the real-life friend of Spawn creator Todd McFarlane and inspiration for the name of Spawn's alter ego, said that both will be happening in the next several months. Simmons, who dresses as Spawn for conventions, said McFarlane has agreed to do the movie with New Line Cinema and the cartoon for HBO. "They're working on scripts now," Simmons said of the movie, expected as an R-rated film in 1996. "Spawn will be computer generated by ILM (Industrial Light and Magic), just like the dinosaurs in Jurassic Park.

"There will be no shortcuts. You know how Todd hates shortcuts."

The animated Spawn will be seen before the live-action Spawn, Simmons said. There's been talk of a Spawn/Tales of the Crypt block, and preliminary designs for Spawn have already been completed.

"HBO is allowing us the freedom. It's just like Image," Simmons said. "If Todd doesn't like it, you're not going to see it."



Al Simmons.

Ken Kelly wins with cards

BY JANET L. HETHERINGTON

FOR THE PAST 23 YEARS, KEN KELLY has been painting dynamic scenes of heroic fantasy in the tradition of his mentor, Frank Frazetta. Now, the works of Ken Kelly—comprising some of his earliest to most recent paintings—have been reproduced in two glorious card sets from FPG, with card set number three as well as a new art book already in the planning stages.

COMBO: We're interested in knowing about the latest Ken Kelly card set from FPG...

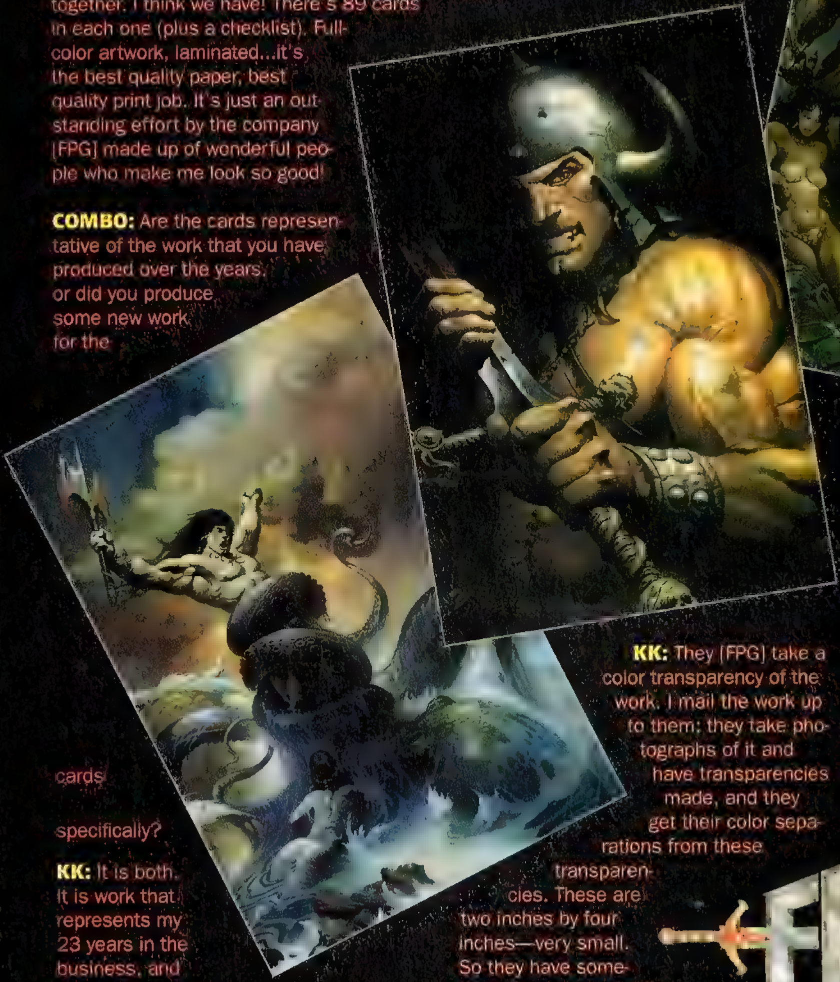
KEN KELLY: It's out! Card set number two is out...it's been out since early July, and doing quite well. I'm quite thankful.

COMBO: Perhaps you can describe the set for us?

KK: It's sword and sorcery, heroic figures, Conan-types, heroes battling beasts...that's card set number one. I would imagine that card set number two is a continuation of that subject matter—heroic fantasy-type characters that I do.

We've tried to put an interesting set together. I think we have! There's 89 cards in each one (plus a checklist). Full-color artwork, laminated...it's the best quality paper, best quality print job. It's just an outstanding effort by the company [FPG] made up of wonderful people who make me look so good!

COMBO: Are the cards representative of the work that you have produced over the years, or did you produce some new work for the cards specifically?



KK: It is both. It is work that represents my 23 years in the business, and we've tried to—as time permits—get as much new stuff as we can. That's what I'm currently doing now, setting up for card set three. We're trying to vary the subject matter, and get new work in, too. But it's a combination—a representation of my early work, middle years and what I'm doing now. You've got to have fresh new stuff; the fans love it!

COMBO: Obviously, the cards are not that large. What size are your original paintings?

KK: You won't believe it! There are some that are five feet tall by four feet wide; there are some that are three feet by four feet. Most of my work is four feet by two and one half to three feet. I work large. I'm one of those artists who just simply can't do it small. I have in the past, but normally I work very big. So it's reduced tremendously...and it holds up quite well, I might add.

COMBO: Considering the large sizes involved, did you have slides made when FPG decided to reproduce your work?

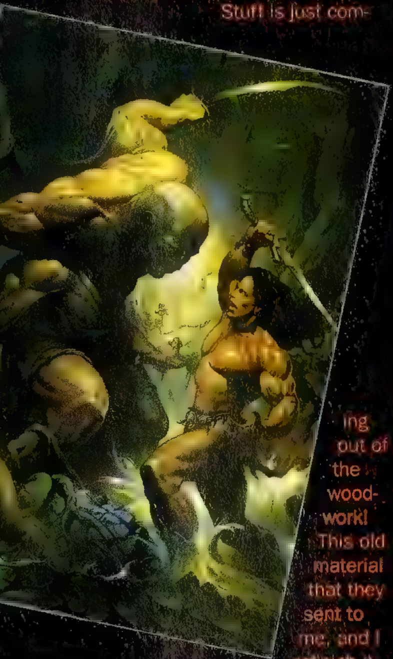
KK: They [FPG] take a color transparency of the work. I mail the work up to them; they take photographs of it and have transparencies made, and they get their color separations from these transparencies. These are two inches by four inches—very small. So they have something they can work with. The hard part for them is getting all of the work into their offices, getting it all photographed and getting it into the small transparencies. Once they have that, they can mail the originals back, and they're on their way.

COMBO: Do you still have most of your own original paintings?

KK: I don't have most of my originals. Twenty years of life's ups and downs...the need to sell them. I have about 40 originals, but most of the big ones are gone.

COMBO: It must have been quite the task to round up your work for this card set!

KK: I don't know how—honest to God, I don't know how—they did it! Stuff is just coming out of the woodwork! This old material that they sent to me, and I refinish it. They had a showing in St. Louis in May, 1994 of my stuff. I think it was about 30 or 40 pieces varied through the years. I was asking, 'How did you find this stuff? Where did you acquire it?'



I'm still adjusting to having all this work come back up! I thought it was long gone. I had sold it to private individuals across the country in different states, and long forgotten where it was. Now, to have it come back...it's so amazing and it's such a variety of work. Wow! I did all that through the years!

COMBO: Was there any particular piece that you were happy to see?

KK: Lots of them. Hour of the Dragon, People of the Black Circle. Piece after piece...I thought they were long gone, and they came back into my studio to be refinished. It's been quite an adventure for me.

COMBO: As an artist, what have been your influences?

KK: My greatest influence is Frank Frazetta. He is my teacher; I studied under him for about four years, spending time in his studio, just chatting and talking and watching him work. That would be where the most influence came from; he also does the heroic figures and the feminine little babes. I just fell into it. The first time I saw it, I loved it, and I haven't stopped. I've just tried to learn as much as I can.

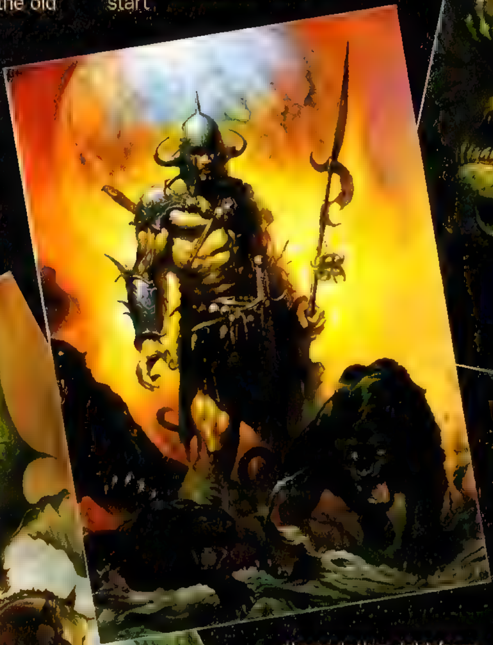
I'm also interested in some of the old masters, such as Rembrandt, Michaelangelo, Raphael. But the strongest influence on me would be Frank Frazetta because of the power in his work. I'm just totally impressed with his work.

COMBO: I understand that there is a personal relationship as well?
KK: Yes, there is. Family. His wife is my cousin, and I've know him all my life, since I was a little boy. He used to visit my parent's house. I had already known him for a good ten or twelve years before I realized that what he was doing was of any importance. Then it was a whole new dimension to the man. What he was doing, I liked...and as I became an adult, I took it seriously. And boy, what a lucky man I am! So close to someone so talented...and I took advantage of it. He says he's tried to teach other people, and no one ever learned. But it just came so easy to me.

I still stay in touch with him. He's retired, basically. But he sure knows how to talk art! He sure can get you fired up when you need it.

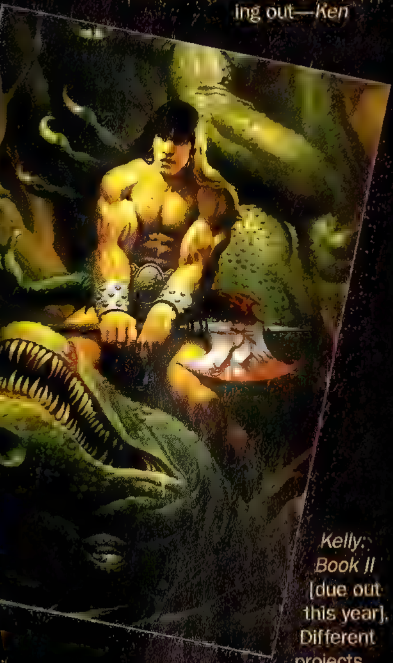
COMBO: How do you arrive at the ideas that you portray?
KK: It varies. The Tor books that I do the covers for...the Conan books...they have a little synopsis that I pull from. They usually give me one or two, and it's up to me which one I want to do. As I read it, I'll get a mental picture of something. If I like it, I'll draw that...I'll jot that down real quick, and I'll fax it to them. And if they like it, sometimes we'll start the painting right from that brief sketch. Other times, they like to see other sketches. Sometimes they give it to me. Sometimes, it's out of my head. Sometimes, we'll just talk about it over the phone, and that creative stuff starts going and then I'll see things and start drawing. It's a combination of things.



COMBO: What medium do you work in?
KK: Oils. All oils. It takes two weeks to finish an assignment. Normally, it's a week, week and a half for concept and illustration—little preparation things. Once you know what you want, everyone knows what they want and I get the 'go' signal, it's usually two weeks.

A larger piece—say, the five-foot long one—that takes a month or month and a half. That's simply because it's so large and it's hard to do. It's physically hard to move the paint around!

COMBO: What projects do you have in the works?
KK: We presently have an item called Colossal Cards; these are miniature posters. We have a book coming out—Ken Kelly: Book II [due out this year]. Different projects that the publisher and I have expressed an interest in doing, and it's all a time factor—how much can you get done in a certain time. There's lots of things going on.



COMBO: Is there still a strong interest and market for your heroic fantasy style of artwork?
KK: Absolutely. People have wondered that through the years, but my [card] set is doing very well...excellent. My first set broke records, and I'm hoping the second one might. That would demonstrate that there's still an audience out there for this stuff. I get fan mail on it.

There's still a tremendous interest in this stuff. I don't think it will ever go away. You've got the male ego in their own little fantasy world, and I try to help them along with it with these little crazy scenes I do. I've got a feeling there'll always be demand for this stuff.

COMBO: Do you see yourself branching out into other topics or continuing to concentrate on the heroic themes?
KK: It's my bag. It's what I do the best, and I'm just going to continue to try to kick butt doing it. I enjoy it. When it works, it's really wonderful. I've tried other realms and it just wasn't my meat and potatoes. Yeah, I'm a sword and sorcery, heroic fantasy artist. That's me. ☾

And now for some really big entertainment

A host of Big names leads Tekno•Comix into 1995

BY ROBERT J. SODARO

HEAR THAT? THERE'S A DEFINITE BUZZ IN THE AIR. IN fact, so palpable is it that it comes not only from the gathering crowd of fans and observers, but it resonates through cyberspace as well. With all the talk about emerging technology—and the advent of interactive comic books—one company that is putting its money where its mouth is, is Big Entertainment, in the form of their comic imprint Tekno•Comix. As has already been announced, Tekno has lined up a number of top creators to create concepts that Tekno can develop into comics, CD ROMs, online adventures, as well as video and computer games, videos, films, and other forms of multi-media entertainment.

Into The Future through the Past

First up for Tekno were characters created by a pair of top-flight writers considered by their peers to be at the pinnacle of their craft: Mickey Spillane (Mike Hammer) and Neil Gaiman (The Sandman). Spillane's seminal hero has been reincarnated as Mike Danger, a hard boiled fifties private dick who has been transported into the future. Mickey Spillane's Mike Danger premiered this past fall in a daily and Sunday syndicated newspaper strip written by Max Allan Collins, best known for his own Nate Heller historical detective novels and for having written Dick Tracy for 15 years.

Gaiman, fresh from his multi-award-winning Sandman series for DC Comics, has jumped into a new mythos with Mr. Hero, the Newmatic Man, a steam-driven Victorian-era robot. Mr. Hero faces off against Teknophage, an interdimensional, alien saurian gone Fortune 500. Teknophage, an unrepentantly evil creature is hard at work attempting to subjugate our universe to his malevolent whims. He conducts his nefarious business from his mobile corporate offices high atop the Phage Tower, located on his home planet of Khalighoul. The unusual structure is propelled by steam via alchemy. Mounted on a set of monstrous treads, the Phage Tower lurches forward every 13 seconds and is fueled by a steady influx of human souls. You can always tell where the building has been, because it leaves a trail of human bones and refuse behind in its wake. According to Gaiman, "The Teknophage is going to be very scary. A very dark book, probably fairly nasty. With these characters, I tried to come up with something that just didn't seem like something else. I knew from the start it wasn't going to be Neil Gaiman's X-Men or Neil Gaiman's Superman or whatever. It was going to be interesting characters and interesting ideas that wouldn't be like any comics anyone had done before."

THE NEWMATIC MAN™

Beginning at the Edge of Tomorrow

Equally impressive were the next pair of creators, Majel Barrett Roddenberry and Leonard Nimoy, both known the world over for their long-time association with Star Trek. Barrett Roddenberry is not only (obviously) the widow of series creator Gene, but played Nurse Chapel (and the voice of the computer) on the original series as well as Lwaxana Troi (mother of Diana) on Star Trek: The Next Generation. Nimoy—in spite of protests to the contrary (his book I Am Not Spock) will always be known as the point-eared, half human, half Vulcan, always logical extraterrestrial.

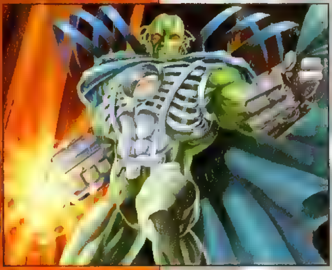
Barrett Roddenberry has licensed to Tekno the rights to her husband's never-before published last work. Gene Roddenberry's Lost Universe is the complete antithesis of his Star Trek world, for in Star Trek, the Federation operates under the auspices of the Prime Directive, that of non-interference with indigenous populations. With Lost Universe, the series goal is the ultimate reunification of the peoples scattered throughout the galaxy.

Earth is recovering from a devastating 1,000-year long war with a vastly powerful alien race. One of the results of this war has been the scattering of mankind into isolated pockets of existence. Set in the time period immediately after the war, the series focuses on a team of explorers who are bound and determined to seek out all of the various colonies and reunite them into a universal community. Lost Universe explores the meaning of humanity, and how that meaning can change over time and space. Further development on Roddenberry's original idea comes from Barrett Roddenberry and D.C. Fontana, a writer and story editor for Star Trek and Star Trek: The Next Generation.

More than just an actor who has played a beloved character, Nimoy is an accomplished writer, film director and playwright. While conducting research at the SETI (Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence) Program at MIT, he became fascinated, "by the idea of what would happen on this planet if we were actually to get scientifically proven fact that we were going to be visited by aliens from another world." His postulations about such an event can now be seen in Leonard Nimoy's Primortals. Nimoy's extraordinary tale explores the effects of this alien encounter on society.



Prisar and Primaster from Leonard Nimoy's Primortals.

Still, Primortals is more than just a "first contact" experience for the human race, it is more of a reunion, for these Primortals are actually native to Earth. Long before mankind came into dominance on this planet, Earth was visited by a scientifically advanced race which removed specimens of the most promising species native to Earth to prevent them from being wiped out by an impending ecological disaster. Now, a millennia later, these creatures' descendants have returned to the planet of their origin.

"I had developed a story idea with Isaac Asimov that was intended to be a series of novels," Nimoy stated. "For one reason or another, we never went ahead with it." Eventually, Nimoy hooked up with Big Entertainment and that concept evolved into the Primortals. Nimoy explained that while he had never actually been involved with the comic book medium, he had grown up on them as a kid, and felt that the Primortals concept, "...should find its way into a readership." He went on to say that, eventually, Tekno plans on expanding the concept into other media, including CD-ROM, TV and motion pictures.

More than just Comix

Still, Tekno•Comix is more than "just another" funny book label with name creators spinning out more of what has already been seen. It is Big Entertainment's objective to live up to their name, and provide fans with a new level of the medium, that would be a quantum leap beyond anything that had ever been attempted before. Founded by the people who helped found the Sci-Fi Channel, Big Entertainment has already inked deals with a number of companies to produce all sorts of interactive tie-ins with their characters. Included are the following: An agreement with The Post Group at the Disney-MGM Studios to produce approximately 200 comic videos for the company's characters. The Post Group will utilize their new Alias Poweranimator's high-end 3-D animation software to create these videos. Big Entertainment has a deal in place with RochesterTel, one of the largest Baby Bells in the country for pre-paid, interactive phone cards. Not only will these collectible phone cards be imprinted with pictures of Tekno•Comix's characters, and offer the usual phone card services, but card holders will have access to news on Tekno events, interactive trivia games, sweepstakes, comic book updates, and sneak previews of Tekno products. Tekno is already online with Prodigy (offering a 200-screen area, one of the largest ever provided for a service), and has been providing subscribers with behind-the-scenes information as well as access to online interviews with Tekno•Comix creators, artists, and writers, sneak previews of upcoming comics, contests, and artist and writer profiles. According to Mitchell Rubenstein, CEO of Big Entertainment, "Tekno•Comix fans, through Prodigy, will have a unique opportunity to observe the inner workings of a comic book publisher and to have unprecedented input into the actual creative process." He went on to say that through Prodigy, "We are positioning our entire company to be responsive to the input of fans."

In addition to the listed screens (offering interactive and downloadable graphics and information) there are a number of "hidden" screens that only readers of the Tekno comics will know how to access via hidden code words. Information on how to access these screens is available on a special interactive page in all of the comics.

Out on the Cutting Edge of Technology

Rubenstein pointed out that one of the goals of Tekno is to, "expand comics into all forms of media, by using all types of technology. Comics historically originate in a print version and are spun off through licensing to other forms of media, like television and feature films." He went on to say that after examining the medium they determined that it was not only possible, but ultimately beneficial to establish the company as a true multi-media conglomerate, and to utilize the emerging technology of CD-ROMs, online systems, phone-access, and the like to propel the medium into the next century.

"We [wanted to] take advantage of this new media world and launch in multiple platforms, as opposed to launching in print and then spinning into different media," Rubenstein also stated. To this end, the company has already begun to blur the lines between the various media, what with Prodigy and interactive phone cards already in place, comic books launched in the fall of 1994, a syndicated comic strip, and CD-ROMs due out early this year.

With all of this multi-media activity going on, Tekno has already guaranteed itself a host of people who are eagerly anticipating the company's full-fledged roll-out. Big Entertainment and Tekno might just prove that people are interested in not only who is doing what, and how it is being done, but into how many different forms a concept can be translated at the same time. And since all platforms are being developed simultaneously, the concepts should flow seemlessly throughout the entire mediaNet.

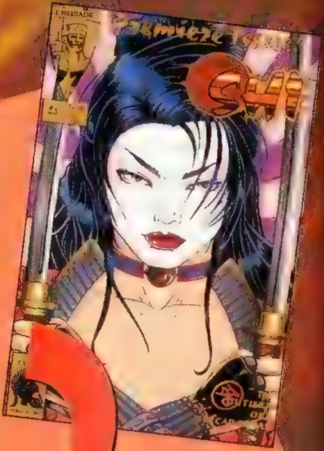
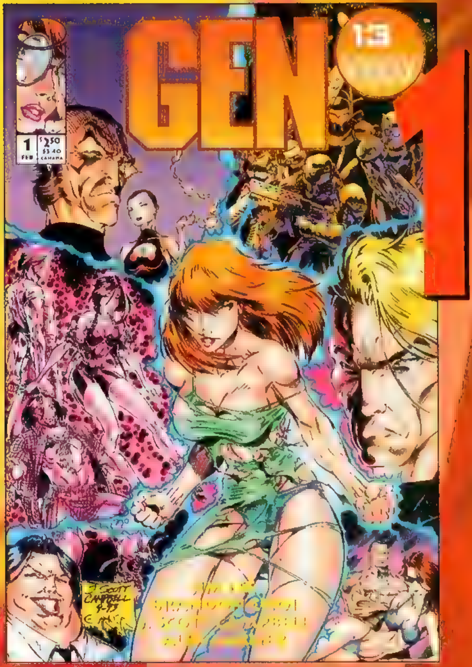
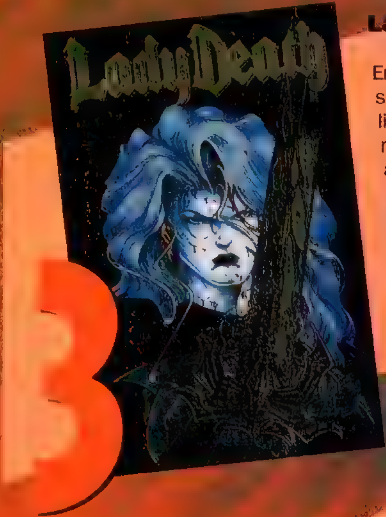
WHAT'S HOT IN COMICS



Shi #1

This gorgeous book has scaled it's way into the number two spot this month. With Issue #2 a hit in its own right and Issue #3 heading that way, this one may be the only book that can give those punk kids a run for their money. If Shi stays on schedule and avoids the shipping late blues, you can be sure this one won't slip off the charts for quite awhile





Lady Death #1

Why is Death always a woman? Er...anyway, Chaos! Comics' scantily clad deliverer to the after-life has a lock on the Top Ten that may never loosen. With a guest appearance in the new Evil Ernie: Revenge mini-series this book has as great a chance of dropping off the charts as a snowball does of lasting one minute in the "Good Lady's" hand.

Gen 13 #1

Will this book ever cool off? Will this book stay in the number one spot forever? It just may. If the regular series continues with the great story and J. Scott Campbell art that everyone has grown to love, plus they continue their ingenious alternate cover marketing, forget it! We'll change the name of this page to "What Else is Hot in Comics Beside Gen 13 #1."

Gen 13 #5A

As if this title needed any help. In keeping with their expose Whilce Portacio by having him do variant covers philosophy, WildStorm Productions did a limited run cover on a book that doesn't last a minute on the shelves anyway. Knowing there was gold in them thar' comics, collectors went bonkers trying to get a hold of one of these. If any book is going to overtake issue #1 for the number one spot, this may be it.

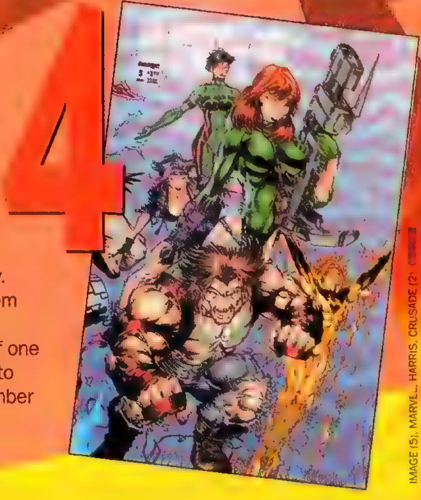


IMAGE (5), MARVEL, HARRIS, CRUSADE (2

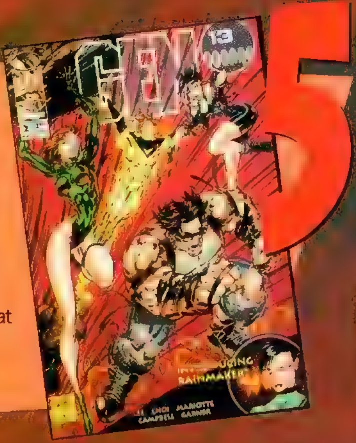
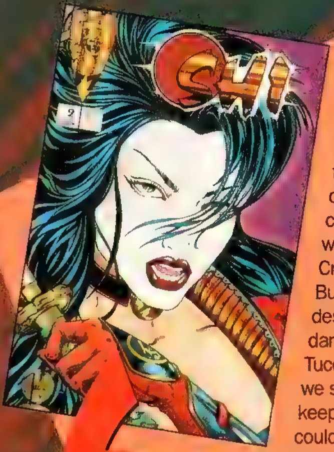
Gen 13 #2

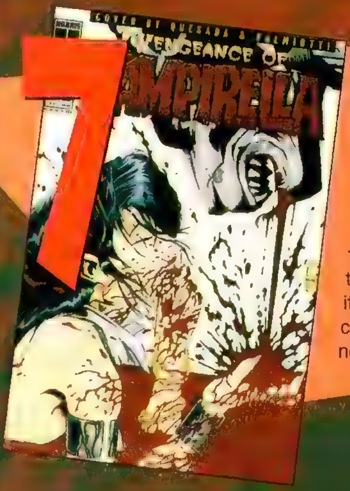
Didn't I just write about this book? Oh no, that was Gen 13 #1...no wait, that was Gen 13 #5A. If you're a bit too slow to pick up on the sarcasm, I'll explain it. This is only number five and already there are three different Gen 13s up here. What is going on here? What is the story good? (More sarcasm) What about the art, it can't be good, too? (It can and it is, that's why this list is full of Gen 13s.)





Shi #2

Number six ain't a bad place to debut. It's amazing that a new title from an unknown creator can rock the comic industry the way this beaut from Crusade Comics has. But hey, this series deserves it. The story is damn interesting and Bill Tucci's art is great. Like we said before, If he keeps on schedule Shi could be a mainstay on the Top Ten for a long time.

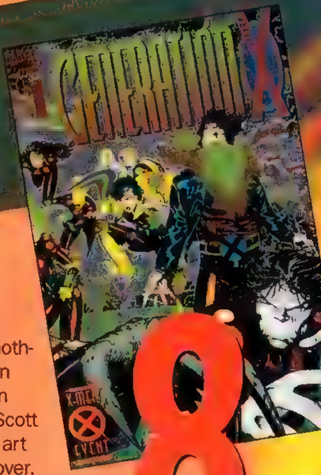


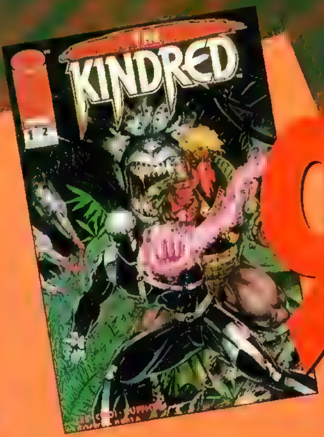
Vengeance of Vampirella #1

It has taken Vampirella over 20 years to gain the monstrous popularity she has today and Harris Comics couldn't be any happier. With the top notch creative team they have working on it (boy do they make her look good) her popularity is sure to remain high and the chance of finding one at a low price nearly impossible.

Generation X #1

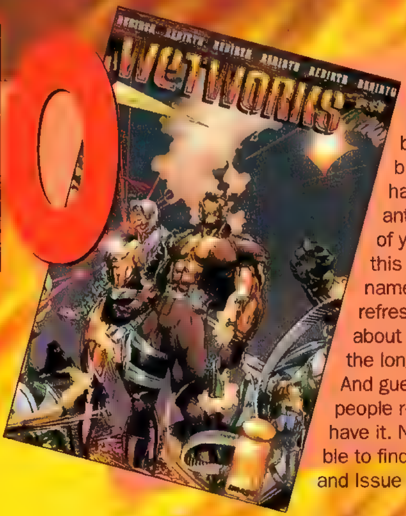
When Marvel announced their plans for a new X-book many people, including myself, thought not another one. But it seems collectors can't get enough X in their diet and they've eaten this one up. I must even admit that I'm impressed with this first issue. The Scott Lobdell story and Chris Bachalo/Mark Buckingham art are definitely the reason. Add to this a chromium cover, and forget it, it's hot!





Kindred #1

If you've tried finding one of these lately you know how difficult it can be. There's no variant or gimmick cover and no huge name artist. So what has made this one so hot? I don't know! It took a while for this series to catch fire, but when it did the groundswell was amazing. It's this type of slow growth that can make a comic popular for a long time.



WetWorks #1

In what has to be the greatest marketing plan ever, WildStorm brought Whilce Portacio back into the spotlight by having him draw their variant covers. After a couple of years away from comics, this made him a household name again and helped refresh peoples memories about his upcoming project—the long delayed WetWorks. And guess what, not only did people remember it, they had to have it. Now, it's nearly impossible to find one. The series is a hit and Issue #1 has led the way.

COMICS PRICE GUIDE

HOW TO GRADE YOUR COMICS

All prices listed are based on books in Near Mint condition, and are listed in a range in order to account for regional and other variations. Always remember that these are retail prices and are not absolute, but are only meant to reflect the dominant pricing for any given book on the market.

Also, when going to sell your comic books, please remember that most dealers will pay anywhere from 10-75% of the prices listed in this guide depending on supply and demand.

Mint–(M)–This is perfect condition as if the book just rolled off the presses. The colors are bright and lustrous, and interior pages are white. The book is flat with no folds or creases and the corners are square cut, sharp and complete. The spine is clean, tight and uncreased, and the paper is clean and soft. The cover is straight and firmly attached to the pages. Books in this condition generally sell for higher than guide prices. Books up to 1970 may be priced up to 200% above guide price, while books after 1970 may be priced at 10%-50% above guide price.

Near Mint–(NM)–This is a nearly perfect condition book that has been read carefully. Colors are still bright, but may be somewhat faded. The book is flat with a tight, clean spine, but the corners may be slightly rounded. Minor imperfections such as tiny impact fingerprint markings may be allowed, but the cover must be straight and secure. Near Mint comics generally sell for around the guide price.

Very Fine–(VF)–This is a nice comic book that looks good. There is very little color fading and interior pages are nearly white. Minor creases are permitted in binding that is otherwise flat and secure, and one small crease may be found elsewhere on the cover. The paper is strong, showing no signs of brittleness. Overall the book looks as if it has been read a few times, but is not damaged. Books in this condition may sell for slightly less than guide, but generally for no less than 80% guide pricing.

Fine–(F)–This is a good looking book that shows some signs of wear and aging. The cover is flat and the binding tight, but there is some fading of color and minor creasing. There may be some wear along the spine. Interior pages are yellowing, but not brown, and the book, on the whole, is a better than average copy. Books in this condition may generally sell for 50% of guide price.

Very Good–(VG)–This is a decent comic, with considerable wear and aging, but without any serious damage. The spine is complete but may exhibit rolling and heavy stress lines near the staples. The colors are significantly washed out and there are minor creases in the cover. Interior pages are still good, and show no browning. Some minor chips in the cover are permitted, and there may be minor cover stains. May contain cover or pages that are loose but attached. A VG comic may sell for around 30% of guide price.

Good–(G)–This is a complete comic that shows serious signs of wear and aging. The cover can be creased, stained and chipped, and colors faded and dull. Interior pages are not white but not completely brown and show no signs of brittleness, although there may be chips missing. This book is completely readable. A good comic may sell for around 20% of guide price.

Fair–(FR)–This is an extremely worn book that is still complete, although not held together tightly. It is still readable, but may have major tape markings, pieces missing from the front and the back, long tears, browning pages and extensive spin roll. Books in fair condition are generally not considered collectible. Fair books are usually priced at approximately 10% of guide price.

Poor–(PR)–This is a significantly damaged book. It may be missing large pieces or even the entire cover. Pages are torn, stained, browned and brittle. Severe damage to the spine, such as hopeless spine roll or massive rust stains. Books in poor condition may sell for around 5% of guide price.

Near Mint–A card with a very minor defect. Light fuzziness on one corner, a small amount of original gloss lost, very minor wear on the edges, slightly off-centered borders, minor printing flaw.

Excellent/Near Mint–A card with a few minor flaws, but no major defects. Minor wear on the edges, small fuzziness on the corners, very small amount of wear, slightly off-centered borders, or slightly faded card.

Excellent–A card with minor defects. There's some slight rounding at some of the corners, minor wear at the edges, off-centered borders, and some possible visible wear.

Very Good–A card that has been handled a lot, with minor creases. Rounded corners, scuffing at the corners, slight notches on the edges, borders can be off-centered, discoloration, gloss of the card can be gone, and the picture may be slightly out of focus.

Good–A card that has been handled, abused or scuffed. There's rounding and layering at the corners and borders can be way off. There is also loss of gloss on the face and major notching on the edges.

Poor–An abused card! This is the lowest grade of a card. It can have a tear, holes punched, writing on it and major physical alteration has been done to the card. This card is usually only kept as a filler of a set until a better conditioned card is obtained.

MAGIC The Gathering

An Apprentice's Approach

BY SHAWN F. CARNES

CUSTOMER SERVICE REPRESENTATIVE, WIZARDS OF THE COAST, INC.

YOU'VE SEEN PEOPLE PLAY IT IN coffee houses, on airplanes and at the lunch table. You keep seeing those multicolored cards with individual illustrations. You keep hearing people ask if a Shivan Dragon is worth it in trade for a Force of Nature. You probably wonder if these people have taken leave of their senses as you ask yourself, "What is this Magic game all about?"

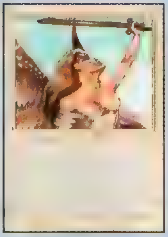
To put it simply, Magic: The Gathering™ is a trading card game that pits two players, or wizards, against each other in a duel of magic. Each player has a deck of cards representing a wizard's library of magical knowledge. Using these cards, players cast spells and summon creatures to defeat their opponents.

Margaret Organ-Kean

These cards are also collectible. Gathering together the unlimited edition and the first four expansion sets, about 1,000 different cards have been released. The Magic cards act as fantasy baseball cards; you can trade them and some are even rarer than others. But the big difference between Magic and baseball cards is that you can play a game with Magic.

How do I start?

You've bought a Magic starter deck and want to learn how to play. Will you need to enroll yourself in a wizard's college in order to decipher the rules? That's highly doubtful. At first, all you need is a friend who's willing to learn along with you. Get your starter deck out, and either have your friend buy one or provide an extra yourself. Once you and your friend both have starter decks, tear off the wrapping and look at the cards.



Douglas Shuler

Inside a starter deck you'll find 60 different cards and a rules booklet. Take this time to sort your cards. Notice that they break down into distinct categories of color. These colors represent the five colors of magic used in the game: blue, black, green, red and white. You've probably also got a few cards that appear dark gray in color. These cards, known as artifacts, don't actually belong to any of the colors; they are considered colorless. Generally, all of these cards—the blue, black, green, red, white and colorless cards—are magical spells. Finally, you probably have quite a few light gray cards with pictures of various lands on them. These land cards are the basic element of the game: the reason you have so many is that you need them to play.

Here is all you'll need to get started.

Wizards of the Coast

After looking at the cards, you may ask yourself, "Well, I've sorted through my cards; now what am I supposed to do with them?" Remember that a true wizard must understand the nature of magic before casting a spell. There is indeed a method to this madness. As I mentioned earlier, the cards make up the library of knowledge you can use to engage in a wizards' duel with your friend. The land cards serve as the power source that fuels your magic. You draw on them to cast your spells. The five colors of cards and the colorless artifact cards are the spells you have at your disposal.

By now, you've noticed that most of your lands are one of five different types: islands, swamps, forests, mountains or plains. Each of these lands has a symbol next to a diagonal T. The card text mentions that this symbol will add to something called a mana pool. First things first: that symbol represents a unit of mana, which is the energy that powers your spells. Each of the five land types has a different mana symbol on it because they each produce a different type of mana. The different mana types are linked to the five colors of magic. Islands produce blue mana, swamps produce black mana, forests produce green mana, mountains produce red mana and plains produce white mana. You can tell a little bit about a color of magic by the symbol used to represent its mana. White mana, for example, has a white sun as a symbol. This represents the purity of white magic. Indeed, as you will later discover for yourself, white magic deals with protection and healing spells.

Now that you've got the power, let's look at the spells. While you can play your land cards for free, every spell has a casting cost. Notice that the mana symbols on the land cards match the symbols on the upper right hand corner of the spell cards. The mana symbols in the corner of a spell card represent the cost to cast that spell. Many of your spell cards probably have a number in a gray circle next to the mana symbols. This number is also part of the cost. If it's a 2, for example, it represents two units of any color of mana. You can use two red mana, two blue mana, even two colorless mana; it will satisfy the cost just the same.

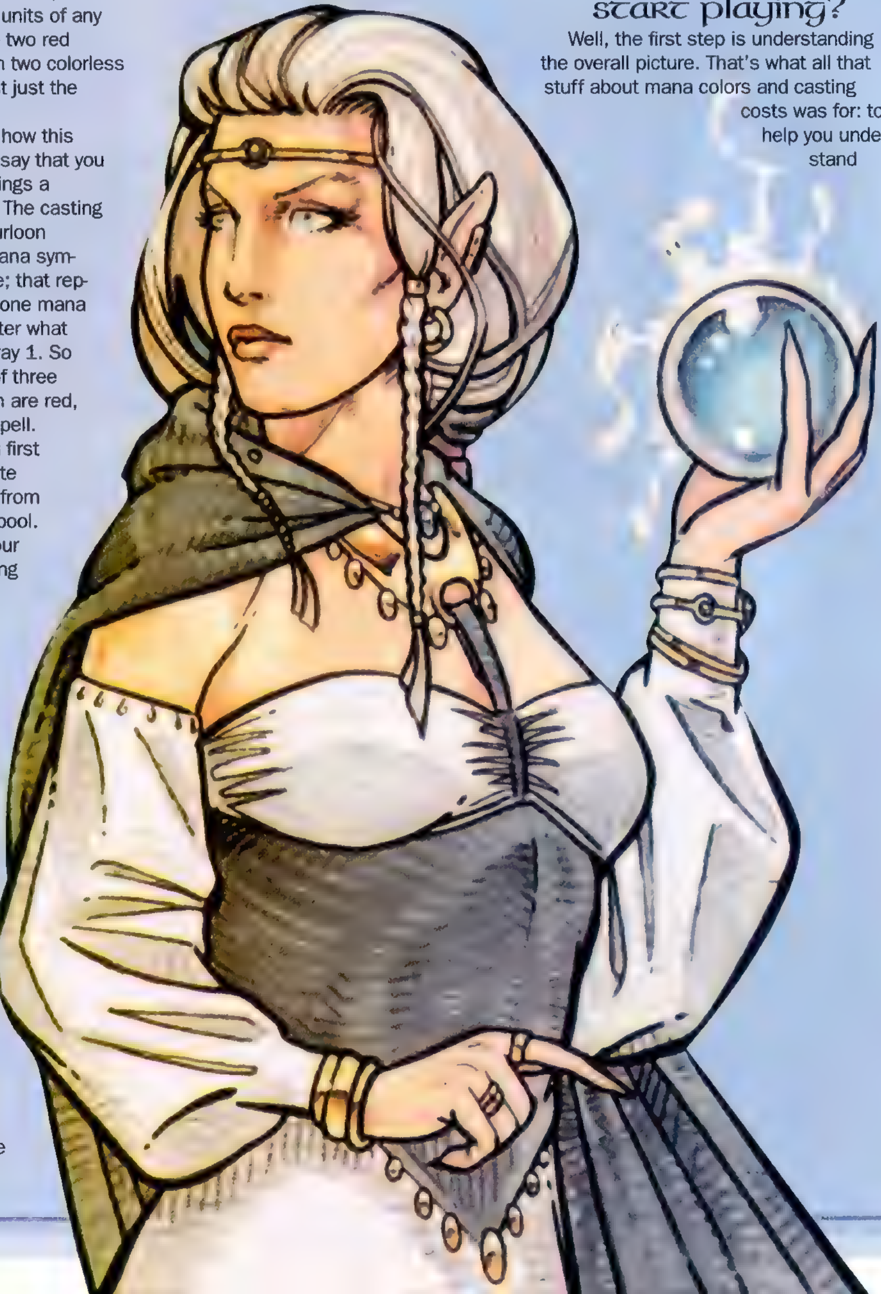
The best way to explain how this works is by example. Let's say that you want to cast a spell that brings a Hurloon Minotaur into play. The casting cost in the corner of the Hurloon Minotaur card is two red mana symbols and a 1 in a gray circle; that represents two red mana and one mana of any color. It doesn't matter what color the mana is for the gray 1. So long as you spend a total of three mana, at least two of which are red, you'll be able to cast this spell. Overall, to cast a spell, you first need to draw the appropriate amount and color of mana from your lands into your mana pool. Then spend the mana in your mana pool to pay the casting cost of the spell. That's how you play your spell cards.

But wait—how exactly do you go about drawing mana from your lands? Well, this is where that diagonal T in the text of the land card comes in. That T is known as a tap symbol; it indicates that to get the mana from your land into your mana pool, you have to tap the land card. To do this, you turn the card 90 degrees, so the long side is horizontal instead of vertical. Once you've tapped the card, the mana goes into your mana pool and the card stays tapped (sideways). Don't worry; it won't stay that way forever. Tapping just indicates that the land has been used up for this turn.

As you play Magic, you'll discover a wide variety of spells. Take a close look at the spell cards and you'll notice several classifications. There are sorceries, enchantments, instants, interrupts, summons (creatures), and artifacts. Each kind of spell does something different; some bring creatures or artifacts into play, some modify other cards or rules, others generate particular effects. The rule booklet will give you a good explanation of what the classifications of spells do. On an individual basis, read the card. You may not understand exactly what the text means, but that's okay. You'll still get an idea of why the spells are broken down into their classifications. You'll also learn more about the spells as you play; sometimes it's hard to understand what a particular spell is for until you run into a situation that calls for it.

So, how do I start playing?

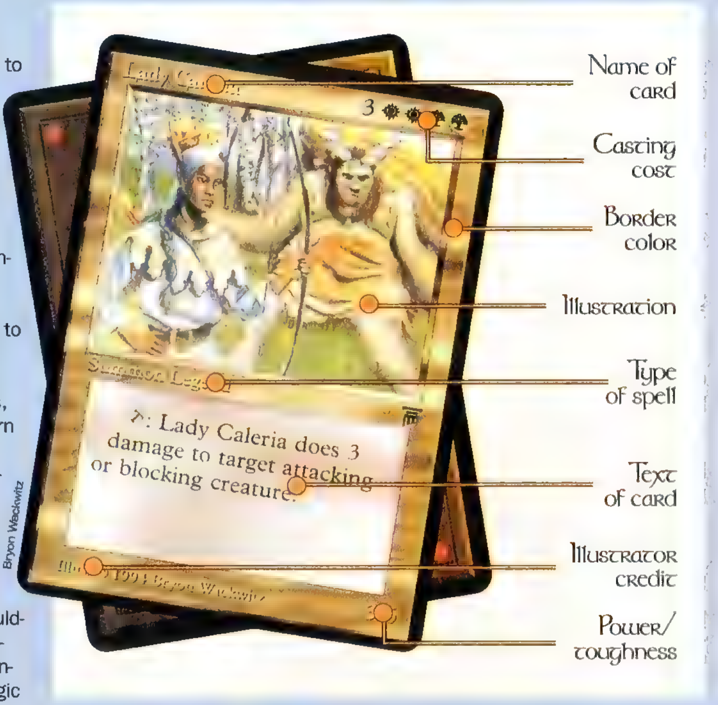
Well, the first step is understanding the overall picture. That's what all that stuff about mana colors and casting costs was for: to help you understand



Quinton Hoover

Magic before you start, as well as to give you a good feel for the flavor of the game. Now that you know the basics, let's learn the nuts and bolts behind playing Magic.

Again, the object of the game is to defeat your opponent in a magical duel. At the beginning, you and your opponent each have 20 life points. When you reduce your opponent's life point total to zero, you win the game. As you already know, you do this by casting spells to summon creatures and artifacts, create enchantments, or otherwise affect your opponent. To keep everyone from trying to cast spells at once, game play is divided into alternating turns, and each player's turn is broken down into phases. These phases run as follows:



Bryon Wackwitz

Phase 1: The untap phase

Remember when I said your cards wouldn't stay tapped forever? This phase essentially resets your magic back to a ready state. During this phase, you untap any of your cards that have become tapped since the beginning of your last turn.

Phase 2: The upkeep phase

Some cards require some sort of cost to keep them in play, or to create or prevent some effect. If you've got such a card in play, this is when you pay for it.

Phase 3: The draw phase

This phase is simple enough: draw a card from your library and place it in your hand.

Phase 4: The main phase

This is the part of your turn in which you begin working on the object of the game. You can do several different things during this phase, in whatever order you like:

•Play a land card. You may only play one land card per turn.

•Cast spells. You can cast any kind of spell during this phase; indeed, some spells can be cast only during this part of your turn. These include sorceries, enchantments, summons (creatures), and artifacts. You may cast as many spells as you wish, as long as you have enough mana available.

•Attack your opponent. This is the time for your summoned creatures to help you by attacking your opponent on your behalf. When you decide to have your creatures attack, the main phase temporarily freezes while you resolve the combat. Many of the things you can normally do during your turn become illegal until the attack is over. Combat breaks down into phases itself, including such steps as declaring attackers, declaring defenders, and resolving damage. The rulebook gives a good breakdown and more detailed information of exactly what happens during combat. You can only declare an attack against your opponent once during your turn. You can attack with more than one creature, but they have to attack at the same time.

Phase 5 The discard phase

This phase serves two purposes. First of all, at the end of your turn, you can't have more than seven cards. If you have more, discard the extras. Second, if you don't need to discard, this phase gives you the chance to let your opponent know you don't want to do anything else during the main phase, so you are ending your turn.

Once you're done, your opponent gets a turn. He or she then goes through the same phases you did. During your opponent's turn, you can still do a few things. You may cast instants and interrupts, use artifacts and enchantments you already have in play, and have your creatures use their special abilities—as long as they don't have to attack to do so. When your opponent's finished, it's your turn again. This continues until someone wins.

I think I know how to play—now what?

Most importantly, enjoy the game! In my opinion, you have discovered one of the most delightful games on the market. Just keep in mind that there's no need to burn the midnight oil to unravel the rules; most of the time they're pretty simple if you think all the steps through. If you do get a bit mystified, don't hesitate to summon some of Wizards of the Coast's magical assistants from the Customer Service department. You can reach them by calling (206) 624-0933 from 8:00 am to 6:00 p.m., Pacific Standard Time. Just don't call at other times; even wizards need their sleep. ☾

The New Loo

A new cast and a new outlook aim to make Batman Forever a hit

BY ROB ALLSTETTER

Warner Bros. (2)

B*ATMAN FOREVER?* Total Re-haul might be more appropriate for the next live-action Batman movie.

The movie that comes out this summer promises to be very different than the first two Batman films, even though they grossed more than $400 million domestically.

A new director, two new villains, a new love interest, the introduction of Robin and even a new actor playing Batman will greet movie-goers in mid-June.

Why the changes? It's simply a case of trying to restore blockbuster box-office bite to the Dark Knight.

Batman grossed $251 million in 1989 and is one of the top 10 biggest box office draws of all time. Batman Returns broke Batman's opening weekend record in 1992, but failed to sustain the pace of its predecessor, accumulating $163 million. The dark, sinister tone of Batman Returns seemed to turn off repeat business, and Warner Bros. drew criticism for marketing a very PG-13 movie toward a younger audience with its licensing.

Veteran director Joel Schumacher stepped in, although Tim Burton, director of the first two films, will remain as executive producer. Oscar winner Tommy Lee Jones quickly signed on as Harvey Dent/Two-Face (a role originated by Billy Dee Williams in Batman). After a national casting call failed, Chris O'Donnell signed to play Robin, and Jim Carrey, hot off Ace Ventura: Pet Detective and The Mask, joined the cast as The Riddler, a role everyone thought Robin Williams would take.

But the biggest change came late last year when Michael Keaton announced in a "mutual agreement" that he would not be returning as Bruce Wayne/Batman, and Warner Bros. replaced him with Val Kilmer for Batman Forever and future Bat films.

"I've always admired Val's work," said Schumacher. "His previous performances have been infused with a very individual strength and charisma. We look forward to bringing many new and exciting dimensions of Batman and his legend to the screen, and I feel certain Val's talents will be ideally suited to naking Batman Forever a peak experince for every movie-goer."

Nicole Kidman ended the ballyhooed asting by accepting the role of Chase Meridian in August.

Filming began September 23, 1994 in New York City. After six days, cast and crew returned to Los Angeles to complete principal photography, which was expected to last 12 to 14 weeks. Teasers for Batman Forever were expected in theaters by the holiday season, with full trailers expected in February.

Tommy Lee Jones plays Two-Face in Batman Forever.

Batman Forever, with an anticipated budget of more than $60 million, promises to have a lot more action and a lot more Batman. One Warner Bros. representative said "it's like 007 meets Batman."

The origins of both Two-Face and The Riddler are told in the first 12 pages of he script, written by Lee and Janet atchler, with rewrites by Akiva Goldman.

The Riddler is Edward Nigma, a former mployee of Wayne Enterprises who creted a mind-controlling device and feels verlooked and betrayed by Wayne. Two-Face is the former district attorney of otham City, disfigured physically and motionally by an accident he mistakenly elieves was caused by Batman.

The Riddler is after Wayne, and Two-Face is after Batman. The pair team up, not realizing that they're both after the same person.

Enter Chase Meridian, a criminal psychologist who becomes fascinated with Batman. Robin is introduced to the film series as Dick Grayson, a former circus acrobat whose family was killed in an accident caused by Two-Face.

The new Batman costume designed for Kilmer will mix elements of the muscular suit of Batman and the art-deco suit of Batman Returns. The suit will also allow for more head movement, and the cowl will fit the chin differently. Sources say Kilmer, at six feet, one inch, strikes a "much more majestic" pose as Batman than Keaton.

Kilmer will have more gadgets to play with, too. Look for extensive use of Batman's utility belt, with new devices. There will be a new Batmobile, Batwing (which hangs in a redesigned Batcave) and Batboat, all three of which will be used in the movie.

Alfred, again portrayed by Michael Gough, will also play a larger role, assisting Batman with the technological wizardry.

Sources say sets are on "a tremendous scale." Look for never-before-seen areas of Gotham City, including Arkham Asylum, Wayne Enterprises, Gotham Square and Lady Gotham.

Jim Carrey, who has already agreed to a sequel for The Mask, will wear several costumes as The Riddler, all with the question-mark motif. Robin's costume will mix elements of the original comic book costume and the new one, and is based on his outfit as part of his family's circus act.

Acclaim Entertainment—which has the video game license for Batman Forever, including its first arcade game—will also provide special effects with its motion capture technology. The technology uses scanning, traditional modeling and a proprietary, tetherless optical motion capture process, similar to the process used in Forrest Gump in the scene in which a modern day Tom Hanks is shown shaking hands with John F. Kennedy.

TriStar Pictures

Val Kilmer does law enforcement sans cowl in 1992's 'Thunderheart.'

"Sophisticated motion capture technology allows us to create special effects not previously seen in feature films," said John Dykstra, director of special effects for Batman Forever.

Expect another Bat-blitz of merchandise this summer. Companies were lining up before the movie was even cast, and, despite the problems it had with Batman Returns, McDonald's was expected to sign a deal, perhaps long term to include future Batman movies.

New Line Cinema

Jim Carrey is all smiles about playing Riddler

With the Fox Network animated series and "The Knightfall" storyline that ran in the comic books last year, Batman has maintained a high profile in between movies. Writers of the comic book realize that some elements of what they have been trying to do the last three years will be ignored by the film makers.

"They have their way of doing things, and we have ours, which is fine," said Batman writer/editor Dennis O'Neil. "They are different takes on the same character."

"Television and cinema are a very, very different media from comics," said Alan Grant, writer of Batman: Shadow of the Bat. "They have their own way of putting a show together, putting a character together. And I'm sure they know best as to what's commercial and what isn't."

Warner Bros. is certainly pinning their hopes that Schumacher knows what's best. ☾

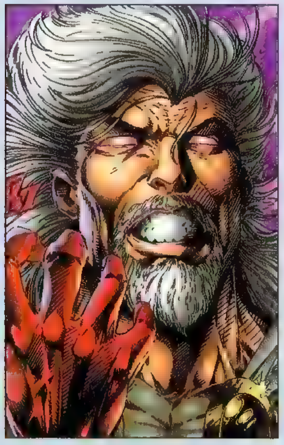
SkyBox gets Extreme!

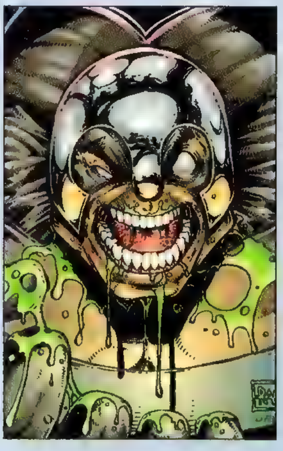
Rob Liefeld and Extreme Studios Director of Marketing Matt Hawkins give the skinny on their new card set

BY ALEX AMADO

ROB LIEFELD, CO-FOUNDER OF Image Comics, is moving in an extreme new direction. In conjunction with SkyBox International, one of the nation's leading producers of non-sport cards, Liefeld's Extreme Studios will be releasing what may be the hottest set of superhero non-sport cards ever. Youngblood, Extreme's core superhero group, will be featured on trading cards slated to be released by SkyBox this February.

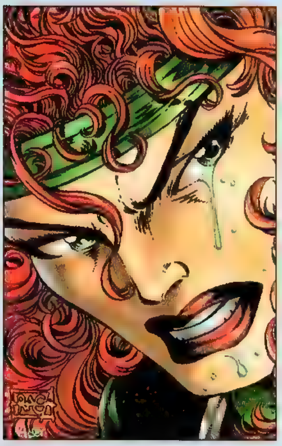
SkyBox's lineup of non-sport card licensees already includes DC Comics, Disney, Bongo Comics, and Malibu Comics Entertainment, but until now they had never produced cards from an Image Comics creator. As for the folks at Extreme Studios, "excited" doesn't even begin to do justice to their enthusiasm for this project.

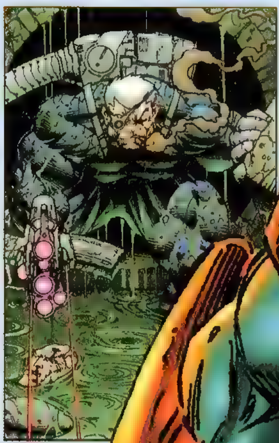


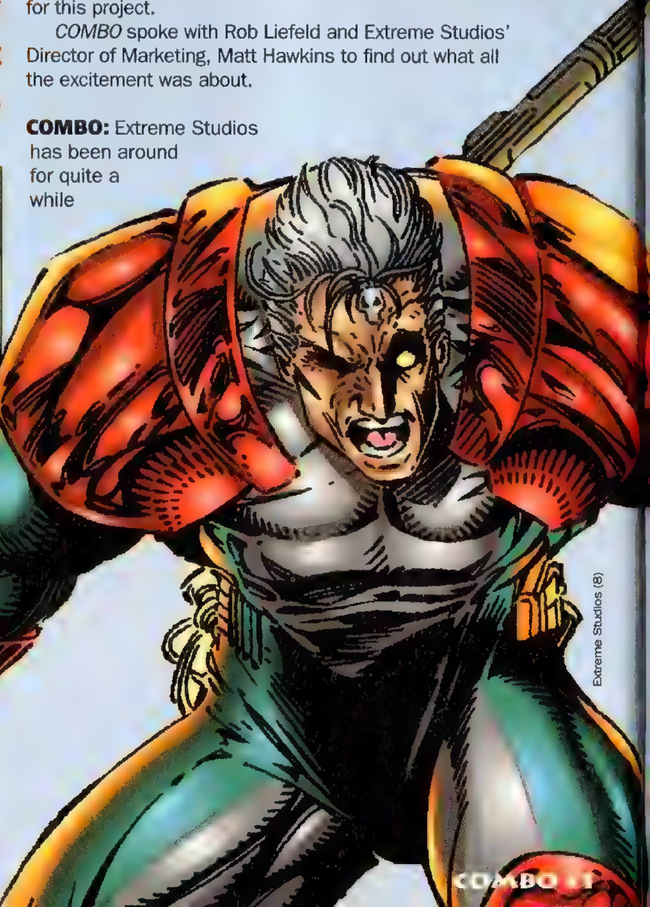


COMBO spoke with Rob Liefeld and Extreme Studios' Director of Marketing, Matt Hawkins to find out what all the excitement was about.

COMBO: Extreme Studios has been around for quite a while







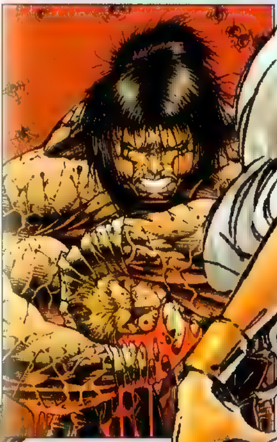
New artwork from the Youngblood card set. Clockwise from above: Psi-Storm, Kirby, Quantum, Grey, Prophet, and Battlestone. Ain't they just darling?

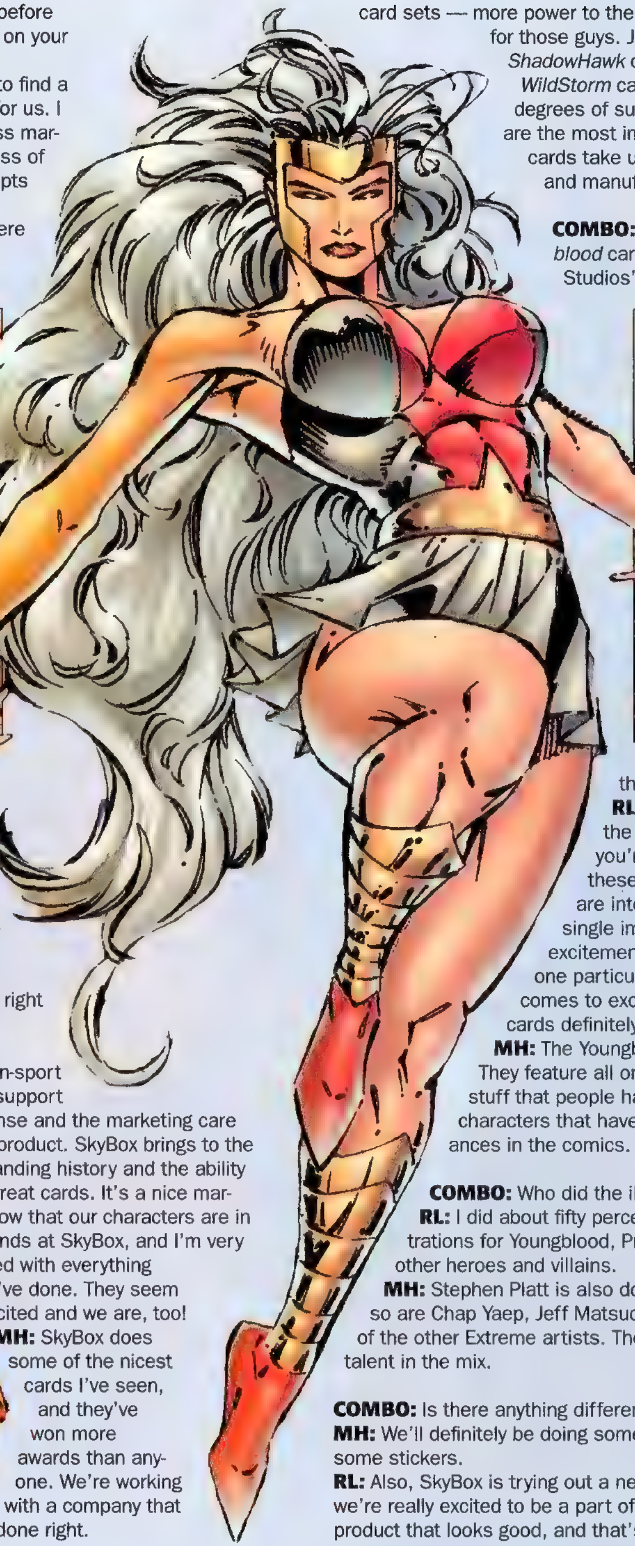
Extreme Studios (8)

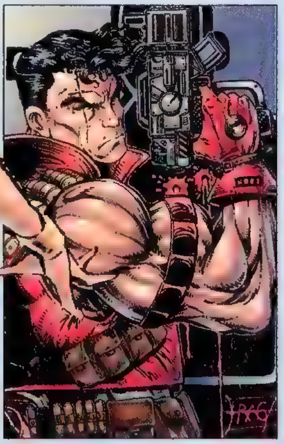
now. Why did you wait so long before releasing a set of cards based on your characters?

Rob Liefeld: It took that long to find a relationship that made sense for us. I think of trading cards as a mass marketing way to build an awareness of new characters and new concepts in today's marketplace.

Matt Hawkins: Early on we were more worried about getting our books out on time, but now everything is running smoothly and it's time to put out something like these cards. It's primarily for the fans, but the cross-marketing doesn't hurt.



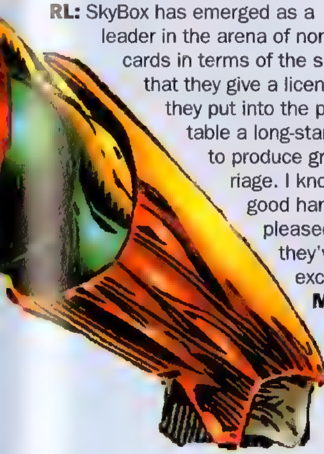




COMBO: Why was SkyBox the right company to team up with?

RL: SkyBox has emerged as a leader in the arena of non-sport cards in terms of the support that they give a license and the marketing care they put into the product. SkyBox brings to the table a long-standing history and the ability to produce great cards. It's a nice marriage. I know that our characters are in good hands at SkyBox, and I'm very pleased with everything they've done. They seem excited and we are, too!

MH: SkyBox does some of the nicest cards I've seen, and they've won more awards than anyone. We're working with a company that we know will get the job done right.



COMBO: SkyBox is clearly a leader in the card industry, so why do you think they have not done any other Image artist's cards?

RL: Plain and simple, I don't think they were available. Image is a very weird and peculiar place. Two of those guys did their own card sets — more power to them. I think it was a great move for those guys. Jim Valentino did his ShadowHawk cards and Jim Lee did his WildStorm cards and both met with varying degrees of success. For me, comic books are the most important thing, and trading cards take up a lot of time in the design and manufacturing.

COMBO: So, tell me about the Youngblood cards. Do you think Extreme Studios' fans will get excited about them?

RL: Yes. If you're a fan of any of the Extreme Studios artists, then you're going to be excited about these cards. Trading cards to me are interesting because it's just one single image that communicates the excitement and the information of that one particular character, and when it comes to excitement, I think that these cards definitely fit the bill.

MH: The Youngblood cards are awesome! They feature all original artwork, with lots of stuff that people haven't seen before, including characters that have only made one or two appearances in the comics.

COMBO: Who did the illustrations for the cards?

RL: I did about fifty percent of the cards, including illustrations for Youngblood, Prophet, Supreme, and various other heroes and villains.

MH: Stephen Platt is also doing several of the cards, and so are Chap Yaep, Jeff Matsuda, Dan Fraga, and quite a few of the other Extreme artists. There's a lot of up-and-coming talent in the mix.

COMBO: Is there anything different about the cards?

MH: We'll definitely be doing some specialty cards, including some stickers.

RL: Also, SkyBox is trying out a new design on these cards, and we're really excited to be a part of that. Our fans want to buy a product that looks good, and that's what we're going to give them.

In addition to the regular cards, the set will include five wiggle cards and a holographic "SkyDisc" featuring the character Badrock. The Youngblood cards are slated for release in February.

A Whole New World: Disney Collectibles

One of the newest hot collectible areas is Disney movie merchandise. We take a look at the cool stuff from the hottest movie—The Lion King.

BY BEN RUDOLPH

TAKE A YOUNG LION cub, kill off his father, throw in a couple of evil characters, a few animals and put it all together in breathtaking animation...and what have you got? The largest, most elaborate, most extensive ad campaign for collectible merchandise ever.

Some may say it is just a great animated feature length film but Disney knows that The Lion King was so much more. It marks one of Disney's largest merchandise and licensing campaign to date and the collectibles market is taking notice.

In 1989, the Disney corporation began the renaissance of its animation division with the successful release of The Little Mermaid. Then came two more [illegible] animated features, Beauty and the Beast, which received an Oscar nomination for Best Picture, and Aladdin, which broke all box office records in its category. The Lion King did better than the previous three, and its successful [illegible]tion makes all collectables bearing its characters highly sought after.

For starters, SkyBox teamed up with Disney to produce three Lion King card sets. Other SkyBox Disney sets include Aladdin and Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs series I and II. The Lion King set has 90 cards in series I, plus a variety of insert cards to tickle collector's fancy. The set currently sells for about $10-$14. That is quite a deal, considering that the actual art cels from the movie will sell for thousands of dollars when they hit the auction block at Sotheby's in February. There is also a 50-card bonus pack [illegible] set and a [illegible] 40-card series II, numbered [illegible] through [illegible]. The cards in both series are of a very high quality, each representing a magnificent work of art.

Collectors and fans alike will get

The longevity of Beauty and the Beast has kept the collectibles hot.

[illegible] the fun when Disney teamed up with Burger King to produce figurines of seven of the main characters from the movie. Everyone wanted to have the full set causing Burger King to run out faster than they had even sold out before with any other promotion. In fact, the promotion was so successful that they teamed up with Disney again for the [illegible] to [illegible] of the film, so collectors who snapped up the first ones had greater chance to start a collection.

"We want to extend the fun of the story," said Chuck [illegible], director of Disney consumer products. "The merchandise is connected to the characters. It is very important that the products are true to the film." Consumer products make up about 20 percent of Disney's total business, so it is important that there are high quality items.

However, the collectibles do not stop at just trading cards and figurines. The Disney Catalog features a number of limited edition items featuring characters from the hit movie. A Commemorative Watch featuring the Lion King Simba is currently available for $170. Only 10,000 watches were produced, and each watch comes with its own certificate of authenticity. There are also limited edition art cels, ceramic figurines, plates, pendants, and other jewelry all featuring characters from The Lion King.

For art lovers and more serious collectors, there is a special limited edition book entitled The Art of the Lion King. Each of the 3,500 books is individually numbered and autographed by the producer and the directors of the blockbuster movie. The book has over 200 images from the movie, reproduced in a full range of magnificent colors. This special item, which sells for $300, comes with a [illegible] inch [illegible] of the young Simba. Its uniqueness adds to its collectability, and [illegible] Disney does not [illegible] to collectors.

"We have all sorts of markets in mind," [illegible] said. "Many of our products are geared to a [illegible] age group. Collectibles make up a small portion of our total merchandising sales." The Lion King's [illegible] merchandise is expected to gross over two billion dollars, a tribute to the power of the [illegible] story and beauty of the animation. Strong characters are key to the sale of merchandise, and The Lion King has its share of [illegible] and lovable animals.

If you prefer seeing items in person before purchasing them, The Disney Store [illegible] in malls across America and abroad, is a great place to buy Disney collectibles. You can [illegible] as well as popular [illegible] such as Aladdin and Pocahontas. They have items in all different price ranges for collectors of all kinds.

Collectors and fans should be excited about Disney's next big animated feature, Pocahontas. The movie, coming out this summer, depicts the real life story of the historically significant young woman. Disney has set a high standard of [illegible], and it is likely to succeed once again with Pocahontas. Everyone can look forward to a wide range of merchandise and collectibles associated with the film as well. The promotion for Pocahontas began last year [illegible] release of The Lion King and [illegible] before [illegible] this year.

Disney is a tremendous force in the entertainment industry. From theme parks to television to movies to merchandise and collectibles, its buying power should contribute significantly to the popularity of its collectibles for a long time. The Disney Collectibles [illegible] and it is never too late to start collecting Disney memorabilia, and [illegible] it will be a fun and rewarding hobby. Just to think it all started with a mouse. ©

RECOMMENDED READING

The staff of COMBO strongly believes in reading. How can you truly enjoy a comic without reading it? You're not three-years-old anymore. It's time to do more than just look at the pictures.

Reading these darn things will open up whole new worlds and experiences to you. If you want to collect them and sell them, that's fine, just make sure you read them first. If you prefer to read novels, magazines, the back of trading cards, whatever, that's fine; just read. Don't let anyone tell you different—Reading is Cool!

Now who are we to tell you reading is cool? What do we know? You're right, we don't know anything. That's why we got some people you respect to tell you reading is cool. Each month, right here in "Recommended Reading", a famous creator will tell you what he/she reads, how it influenced him/her and why it's cool. So if you won't listen to us, we hope you'll at least listen to them.

Peter David describes books that sent his life in new directions

IT'S DIFFICULT FOR ME TO SINGLE OUT A BOOK or books that have had a major impact on my life. Certainly the bodies of work of various authors have; but is it possible to select one particular book and say, "This was it. This really shook things up, and sent my life in a particular direction?"

Three come to mind, I suppose. None of them is particularly the best written books, nor will they make anyone's top 100 (or even 1000) list of great literature. But one can't argue with The Way Things Are, I guess.

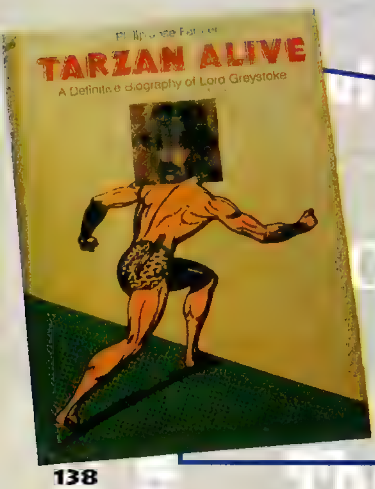
NO, NOT the movie adaptation. The third collection of short stories adapting episodes of the series. It was my first genuine exposure to the series (I hadn't seen it in its original run) and it hooked me. Perhaps I would have gotten into Star Trek in later years…but perhaps not. I got the previous two books, started watching the series in syndication…and eventually got into Trek fandom; made friends, whom I have to this day; met a girl at a Trek con, whom I eventually made my wife (to this day); made some kids with her, who—it can be said—owe their lives to Star Trek; and wrote a bunch of Trek books and comic books of my own that have garnered me thousands of fans and helped build my career.

'Tunnel Through Time' by Lester Del Rey

TUNNEL THROUGH TIME

PROBABLY NOT EVEN by Del Rey but rather by someone ghosting it for him, nevertheless it was a juvenile science-fiction novel that I read and reread and re-re-read. Something about it hooked me into Sci-Fi…for good.

'Tarzan Alive' by Philip Jose Farmer



A DETAILED, STRAIGHT-faced biography that totally buffaloed me (at a tender young age, admittedly) into believing that Tarzan genuinely existed. It literally took me years to realize I'd been snookered (hey, I never said I was quick). It made me realize just how thoroughly people can be convinced of things through the power of the written word. If someone had said to me, "There really was a Tarzan," I would've figured they were kidding. But here someone had written it all down and it had been published…it had to be true.

None of the above works is particularly profound. Certainly not the stuff one would imagine would wind up shaping a life. But—as they say in Lotto ads—"Hey, Y'never know."

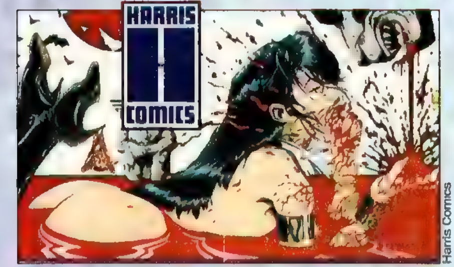
BILL LIEBOWITZ'S RETAIL VIEWS

BY ALEX AMADO

A forecast for 1995

1995 PROMISES TO BE A year filled with changes in the world of comic books, and it might even pack a few surprises. In an effort to get an overview of what the coming year might have in store, we asked Bill Liebowitz, owner of the 15-year-old Golden Apple chain of comic stores in the Los Angeles area, his thoughts. He had some exciting predictions for the next twelve months, as well as some sage advice for comic fans.



Harris Comics

Vampirella: limited shelf space may limit her exposure.

ONE OF THE PRIMARY CONcerns of most comic book retailers these days is the enormous number of books that are being put out by comic publishers. The result of this slew of titles, universes, spin-offs and sequels is that few, if any, comic retailers will have the shelf space or the money to carry everything. According to Liebowitz, "Retailers will have to begin stocking fewer titles. I see a lot of niche marketing. For instance, the 'bad-girl' titles like Shi and Vampirella. There will be stores that will carry those titles and stores that don't. Retailers are going to have to make those choices, and that's going to affect where the collectors buy their books. It's incumbent on the consumers to make sure that their retailers know what they like to read."

Another trend that Liebowitz predicts is price drops on select comics or lines. "Comics have traditionally been an inexpensive form of entertainment, but not anymore. The average price of a comic book has gone up so much in the last couple of years that sooner or later some smart publisher is going to follow Dark Horse's lead and start putting out dollar comics. That's something that'll be really welcomed by the customer. Dark Horse's 'Comics' Greatest World' worked really well in the beginning, and it was a good way to introduce people to new material." While Liebowitz doesn't predict that the average price of comics will go down anytime soon, he advises consumers to look for and support this sort of lower priced introductory item.

On the publishing side, Liebowitz has some definite ideas of who to watch out for. "I think Valiant has been too good and too successful in the past to continue with the low sales they've got right now. They have good people, and they're reaching out to established writers and artists. Especially now that they're part of Acclaim, I think comic collectors should keep an eye on Valiant."

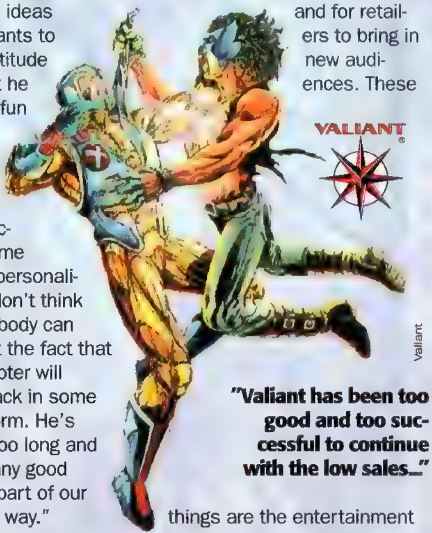
Another company has caught Liebowitz's eye as an up-and-comer, and it's not one that most people would expect. "A company called Caliber Press, which was recently acquired by Stabur Corporation, has been very quietly increasing their output. They're mostly known for black and whites, but they're coming out with a color line and I think that they have some really good things on the horizon." For those of you not familiar with Caliber, they were the publishers of James O'Barr's The Crow on which last summer's movie was based, and they also published some of the earliest appearances of Mike Allred's Madman.

Also to watch for is Stan Lee's upcoming line called 'Excelsior Comics.' "I've talked to Stan Lee about that," says Liebowitz, "And he has some really good ideas about what he wants to do. His overall attitude seems to be that he wants to put the fun back into comics, and I think he's a guy that can do it."

Another prediction about long-time comics personalities: "I don't think that anybody can discount the fact that Jim Shooter will come back in some way, shape, or form. He's been in comics too long and has done too many good things not to be part of our industry in some way."

IN ADDITION TO MORE traditional comic books, Liebowitz is also looking forward to the offerings from two comic imprints that are working to broaden the audience for comic books. "Tekno•Comix is still a big unknown," he says, "But they've certainly put their money where their mouth is, and I think it'll be really interesting to see if they can interest non-comic book people in our medium. I would love to see Mickey Spillane doing something in the same kind of genre that Frank Miller is working in."

DC Comics is also offering non-superhero books under its Paradox Press imprint. "The Urban Legends book and the other Factoid books are exactly the kind of comics that can appeal to mainstream audiences... They're rock & roll on paper. Andy (Helfer, Paradox Press Editor) has shown me some of the things that he's done, and I think the books are amazing. It's a great way for current comic readers to show their friends what can be done with comics, and for retailers to bring in new audiences. These things are the entertainment alternatives that we should offer to our customers."



Valiant

"Valiant has been too good and too successful to continue with the low sales..."

With this scope and variety of publishing projects to look forward to in 1995, this should be a great year for comics!

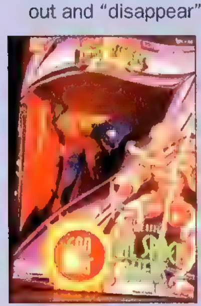
HAVING TROUBLE FINDing that new Legends Batman or Catwoman figure? Wonder why you were never lucky enough to stumble upon an Invisible Woman or color-changing Iceman? Did you miss out on Darwin, Carnage, Pink Ranger, Yellow Ranger, Poison Ivy or Phantasm? Well, guess what folks...you're not alone! You're up against tough odds and an even tougher villain than Venom, Lord Zedd and Magneto combined—the dreaded all-powerful, evil TOY STORE EMPLOYEE!

Here's the scoop. The reason why you can almost never find these treasures I've mentioned is that store employees are grabbing them all up before they even hit the shelves! Wal-Mart, Toys 'R' Us or Target—it happens every day under the knowing noses of management.

At my local Wal-Mart, I watched as two young men, stocking Power Rangers, unpacked some Karate Kick 8" Rangers (there's one Pink and one Yellow Ranger per case). They proceeded to take these out and "disappear" into the storeroom. When they returned, I was going through the two boxes they'd just ravaged. I asked where the Pink and Yellow Rangers were. They lied and said that someone must have taken them, not knowing that I watched them unpack the box.



You've seen this Power Ranger, but what about a Pink 8" Ranger?

CRUSADER BATMAN
WITH POWERFUL PUNCHING ACTION
LEGENDS
BATMAN
OFFICIAL COLLECTOR'S CARD

Batman can't stop a crime from behind plastic.

At the Target store near my home, on three separate occasions, I've watched a certain employee "stash" figures on the top row in the toy section. I've found a White Iceman, Lavender Troi and a multitude of other treasures in his various hiding places. On one occasion, climbing down with a Series I Colossus, this employee happened by. He accosted me, asking me where I'd gotten the toy. I told him I had found it on the shelf. He angrily said that wasn't possible because he'd hidden it for himself. When I told him that hiding toys was against company policy, he turned red and stomped off.

The most blatant display of impropriety was at a Toys 'R' Us in the San Fernando Valley. I had asked the head of the department if he'd check in the storeroom for some fresh cases of X-Men toys. Five minutes later, he walked out with two cases. One had been opened with the White Iceman figure removed. I assumed that another collector had beaten me to it, so I thanked him and continued my shopping. I watched as he returned the boxes to the storeroom, then came back out holding a toy behind his back. I followed him up front and watched in amazement as he purchased the very White Iceman he'd just swiped from the case he'd shown me—two minutes earlier!

He was so cute, we had to put him in.

NOW THE MANagement at these mega-stores are aware of this common occurrence, and guess what? They don't care! I watched an employee at Toys 'R' Us grab all the Invisible Woman figures from a case. I immediately told the manager, who informed me that his employees were allowed to take any toys they wanted. When I informed him that his company's policy was that the toys must be put out on the shelves and the employees could only purchase them on their break-time, he started to sweat. When I asked for the Corporate Office phone number, so I could register a complaint against him, he angrily complied. Target and Kay Bee have similar policies. The employees cannot ravage the cases, yet this practice continues! I need your help! We must join forces to eradicate this evil! Here's what you can do. If you witness an evil employee at work, complain immediately. Get his/her name, the manager's name and the Corporate Office telephone number. Inform the manager of your plans to complain, and mention that you will tell Customer Service that you spoke to him or her. This will shake the managers up, knowing that their names are connected to the crime (the more complaints against them, the quicker they will be terminated!). Call "Corp." and give them your complaint. Get the name of the person you talked to. Ask them what they plan to do about it. Follow-up with another call a few days later, asking what progress they've made. DON'T WAIT FOR A RETURN CALL! Keep control of the situation or they will forget about you.

If enough toy purchasers and collectors complain, something will be done about this problem. After all, we're the customer and the customer is always right. People, united in a common cause, can make things happen!

Gargoyles' visual style helps make the latest from Disney a winner

THE FIRST THING YOU notice about Gargoyles is its visual style. It's a big change from past offerings on "The Disney Afternoon."

"We wanted to get a heroic comic book aspect to it and also something that would have a moody feel," said Greg Weisman, Disney's Director of Series Development. "Also, a lot of it was pure common sense. We have characters that are asleep during the day and only awaken at night. That kind of defined the night time.

"From there, it was just a matter of what the rest of their world was going to be like. We decided to go with a rich color palette. It's not a grim, grey palette. That is due to the character of Goliath, who does not see the world in those tones but rather as a dangerous place loaded with possibilities; a lot of them positive. He believes it will take a lot of work, but the world can be a better place."

Goliath is the head of the tribe of gargoyles that now dominate "The Disney Afternoon" Friday 4:30 p.m. slot. Some might say that the show looks like a cross between Disney's "Night On Bald Mountain" segment from Fantasia fused with Batman: The Animated Series. It has that urban tone that set Batman apart from the competition, still it also has that magic that made the "Bald Mountain" segment terrifyingly beautiful.

"I know a lot of people have brought up Batman," admits Weisman, "but if you look at what they did you'd see that they borrowed heavily from the original Fleischer Superman theatrical cartoons. We did the same thing.

"Yes, our producer, Frank Paur, did come from Batman, but he's trying hard not to do the same thing. In a way, Gargoyles and Batman are cousins, both having Superman as one of their main inspirations. It's a strong influence."

The comic roots go a little deeper than that, too. Weisman used to work under Marv Wolfman when both were at DC Comics.

"I worked on Captain Atom for almost its entire run," he admits, "and I wrote a few other assorted stories for them. I also did a lot of editing. I worked on the Titan line, the Young All-Star stuff, Shazam! and the Secret Origins. So, the answer is yes, comics are part of the sum of my total influences. I still have a tremendous love for comics and there's many I read persistently, such as Bone, Cerebus and Sandman."

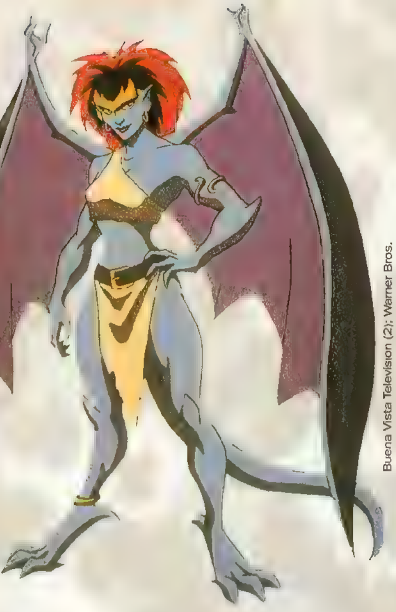
It would take a mind raised on comics to come up with the main plot for Gargoyles. It revolves around a clan of the creatures who were sworn to protect a Tenth Century Scottish clan. They are betrayed and the clan falls. They are then cast into stone. The curse would only be lifted if they are placed on a castle that rises above the clouds.

The Gargoyles' led by positive thinking Goliath (big purple dude).

One day a New York City billionaire notices these statues in Scotland and thinks they would be perfect atop his new skyscraper. Of course, the skyscraper happens to pierce the cloudline.

The now freed gargoyles are lead by Goliath (voiced by Keith David). His right hand man is Hudson (Ed Asner). They are rounded out by younger gargoyles Brooklyn (Jeff Bennett), Broadway (Bill Fagerbakke) and Lexington (Thom Adcox). Their human assistant is NYPD Detective Eliza Maza (Salli Richardson).



Buena Vista Television (2); Warner Bros.

Star Trek star Marina Sirtis voices the evil Demona.

Also of note are the main villains. All three are voiced by members of the Star Trek: The Next Generation cast. They include Xanotos (Jonathan Frakes), Demona (Marina Sirtis) and Coldstone (Michael Dorn).

Disney completed only 13 shows for this season, but relax, they've already gotten the green light to do a lot more. Weisman is hard at work on the second season as we speak.

"We got a pick-up for anywhere from six to 19 episodes for the second season," he admits. "It looks like we'll go to 65 by the time all is said and done. Most shows have to wait until they're at least on the air. In our case what happened is the powers that be saw it and said 'this is good, do more.' There's enough confidence in the idea that there's a feeling like we got something here. As it is, they gave us a real boost when we got the pick-up on the scripts."

One look at Gargoyles, and you will most likely agree with Disney on this one, too.

Skeleton Warriors turning heads

ANOTHER GREAT SHOW THAT'S really turned out to be better than imagined is Landmark's Skeleton Warriors. While at the CBS Saturday morning roll-out eons ago, the show seemed impressive to begin with. But because the final tape wasn't ready for review until September 30, literally the day before the show was going to start airing, there was no time to mention any more about it.

Now, I'll admit it, I'm impressed. The show features great animation, solid plotting and it seems like some actual thought went into it. Good stuff that's well worth getting up at the crack of dawn on a Saturday morning to view. Check it out!

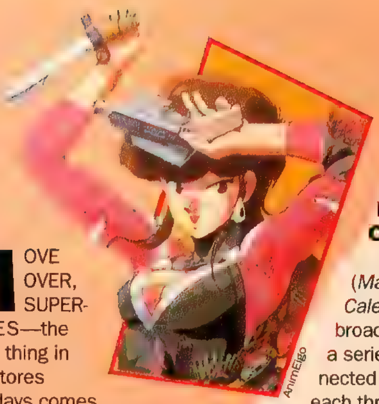
ANIME ADVENTURE

A Japanese animation overview and a brief look at its history



AnimEigo

Bubblegum Crisis

MOVE OVER, SUPERHEROES—the hottest thing in video stores these days comes not from Image co-founders Jim Lee or Rob Liefeld, but from the Land of the Rising Sun. It's Japanese animation, "anime" for short (pronounced "annie-may"), and no matter what your tastes, you're sure to find something you like.

Science-fiction, action, comedy, horror, romance…like the phone book people say, if it hasn't been animated at some point in Japan, maybe it doesn't exist. Do gorgeous girls wielding gigantic guns float your boat? Try Bubblegum Crisis. Maybe you're more in the mood for romantic hijinks with a sci-fi twist. Tenchi Muyo! (No Need For Tenchi!) may be just the thing. If it's wacky martial arts action you're looking for, you might want to check out a kung fu comedy of the sexes called Ranma 1/2.

If anime isn't available at your local comic shop, you can order it directly from the U.S. production companies. Although the U.S. has a long ways to go to catch up with the huge backlog of untranslated anime in Japan, seven companies churning out an average of ten tapes a month bring us closer and closer to catching up. Unlike the early days of U.S. anime fandom, when people huddled around nth-generation anime tapes sent by kindly VCR-equipped friends in Japan, these days it's anime made easy!

WHERE DID IT ALL BEGIN? Although Japan has a long tradition of theatrical animation (one source lists a film as early as 1917), anime didn't come to Japanese television screens until May 1, 1962, when Otogi Manga Karenda (Manga Stories Calendar) was broadcast. Basically a series of unconnected vignettes, each three-minute episode focused on memorable events in history. Over 300 black and white episodes were eventually produced by the time the series ended in 1964.

AnimEigo, Viz Video (2), Pioneer

Bubblegum Crisis, Ranma 1/2 and Tenchi-Muyo!

Now we come to the real history-makers. It's interesting that of the eight animated television programs which aired in 1963, roughly one-third of them were eventually translated into English and seen on American television. Based on the manga or Japanese comics by Osamu "God of Comics" Tezuka, Tetsuwan Atom (Astro Boy) is arguably the most famous; broadcast on January 1, 1963, it was the very first program of a new anime age. Tetsujin 28 (Gigantor) followed in October, with Eightman (Tobor the Eighth Man) making its debut in November. All three are available today in one form or another from various companies.

The very first anime series to be broadcast in color was Janguru Taitei (Jungle Emperor), also based on the manga by Tezuka. Better known in the U.S. as Kimba the White Lion, Jungle Emperor was first broadcast during October 1965 in Japan, and at the time, there weren't many homes equipped with color television sets. Thus, for many Japanese families, it wasn't until the Jungle Emperor movie was released in July 1966 that the series was first seen in color.

Because producers planned to export the series to the U.S. from the earliest planning stages, Jungle Emperor was different from other series on the air at the time. Stories were even told differently—in contrast to the open-ended style of other series, each episode of Jungle Emperor was written to be self-contained, if only because that's the way things were done on American television. Jungle Emperor was also one of the first anime series to include a full-orchestra soundtrack. Tezuka's series would eventually be remade after his death in 1989 with New Jungle Emperor, and despite claims that it lacked the true Tezuka spirit, the remake is also available in English, albeit in a direct-to-video format, and not broadcast on television.

Of the handful of anime TV series well-known in the U.S.—Astro Boy, Gigantor, Tobor the Eighth Man, Kimba the White Lion, Speed Racer (Mach Go Go Go), Battle of the Planets (Science Ninja Team Gatchaman), Star Blazers (Space Cruiser Yamato), and Robotech (Superdimensional Fortress Macross)—only Robotech (1982-83) wasn't animated in the 1960s or 1970s. Does this reflect the prejudices of programming executives or is it purely a financial decision? It's hard to tell. Will more recent anime series ever make it to American airwaves? Recent "Japanimation" marathons on TBS and the Sci-Fi Channel aside, there isn't much in the way of anime on U.S. television these days, but this could change at any time. (If Ted Turner's rumored acquisition of the international martial arts hit episode series Dragon Ball ever proves out, we may all be in for a surprise. At 230 plus half-hour episodes, we're talking major syndication possibilities here.)

AS OF 1992, OVER 800 animated television series were produced in Japan, and although it's true that television animation generally tends toward family fare (direct-to-video features such as Bubblegum Crisis and Tenchi Muyo! tackle more mature themes), it's also true that virtually every demographic is addressed within Japanese network programming somewhere.

In future columns, I'll be introducing you to the different genres of anime in greater detail, while offering a little history along the way. Join me next month as our anime adventure continues!

COMBO ONLINE

Born with computers

I DON'T REMEMBER A TIME when there weren't home computers and video games. That statement puts me at risk of disclosing my youthful age, but I knew it would put this column into perspective.

Like many COMBO readers, I am of Generation X (not the Marvel comic). Unlike columnists in other mags, I understand you...because I'm one of you. We speak the same language.

We're the first generation to be raised on progressive concepts like Sega, CD-ROM, Internet and COMBO. We were weaned on video games, beepers and computer animation.

When it came to addressing the merger of comics and technology, it's only appropriate that COMBO selected a Gen X'er to write "COMBO Online."

With great enthusiasm, I'll be bringing you the inside scoop on the most exciting developments in this arena.

New Products

In future issues, we'll talk with Michael Spano, President of ICE, Inc. the ambitious software publishers from Staten Island, New York. Last year, ICE, Inc. quietly impressed the comics/computer industry with their self-published "interactive graphic novel." These days ICE, Inc. is working on a major merger with a software company that will allow them to increase their distribution and programming potential.

We'll pay special attention to renegade publishers like CD-Comix President Howard Beyer, who proved that you don't have to be big to be good. Last year, Beyer surprised the industry with his high-quality CD version of Ben Dunn's Ninja High School. Now he's slugging it out with the deep pocketed big boys for his share of this growing market.

We'll also get you up-to-the-minute news on the mega-powered Tekno•Comix, the fledgling company with the clout and cash to put comics on your television with a telephone hookup from Bell Atlantic. (That's right, comics on television!) For those lucky enough to travel to the San Diego Comic Con last August, you'll recall that Tekno•Comix was that new company with the virtual reality machines at their booth. Could this be shades of things to come?

FREEX
CD-ROMIX!

Malibu's Freex CD-Romix.

You'll know first if Malibu's Prime CD-Romix is worth $17 (it is) because I'll be the first with the hands-on review. (Incidentally, Malibu says they have plans to release other CD-Romix in the future, but are still courting possible licensees. But who knows, all this may change now that they have been acquired by Marvel.)

I'll also ferret out the latest news on Malibu's forthcoming video game releases in partnership with Sony. Word from Malibu is that Prime (released this past November), Strangers and Firearm will all be adapted for Sega CD format in early 1995.

Spawn will also make it to CD-ROM this summer. According to Image sources the game, which is also in development by Sony, will include Spawn, Violator, Clown, Angela, the Anti-Spawn, and several new characters.

I'll be talking with major software publishers including Berkeley, the people who gave us the Marvel Comics and X-Men Screen Savers. You'll know about these items before any of your friends.

Info You Need

You'll know when to buy the stuff that will tickle your hard drive and smoke your keyboard.

You'll be the first to know about exciting comic/computer releases by CD-Comix, Reactor, Voyager, Tekno•Comix and others. I'll introduce you to the people behind the monitors and let you hear what they have to say about the digital revolution.

Trust me, the digital revolution is here and it's more fun than either the American Revolution or the Industrial Revolution.

Also, if you're already tapped into the Information Superhighway, you know that Marvel and DC have established online talk groups on CompuServe. Don't think for a minute that the independent publishers are going to let the Big Two monopolize the digital grapevine. More than a handful of companies admit they are already quietly seizing the only real open discourse taking place by comics fans today. COMBO will make sure you know how you can become part of it. "COMBO Online" will become more than just idle commentary in the comics industry. It's going to be the place where pros and fans meet to push the comics experience to the next higher level.

There is a revolution being fought in the comics stores and you'd better know how to speak the language of bits and bytes or you'll end up being a "strictly-paper fanboy" your whole life.

So boot-up your computer and get ready for the time of your life, because nobody covers comics and computers the way COMBO can. ©

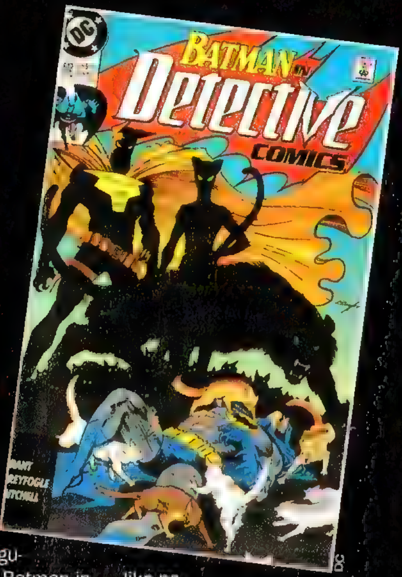
Catman returns in Detective #612



"Cats"
Detective Comics* #612
by Alan Grant, Norm Breyfogle and Steve Mitchell
DC Comics, March 1990

THEY SAY THAT CATS HAVE nine lives. Some cultures have attributed them with mystical energies, and some have even worshipped them.

In Gotham City there are only three cats you need to worry about. Catwoman, Catman and Rasputin. What happens when Thomas Blake's Siberian tiger escapes from its pen on Blake's estate? People get killed, and the press blames the Catwoman. But Blake knows better. Rasputin is responsible for the slayings and he must be recaptured. The Batman is already on the trail, and the only way Blake can find Rasputin before it's too late is to once again become the Catman.

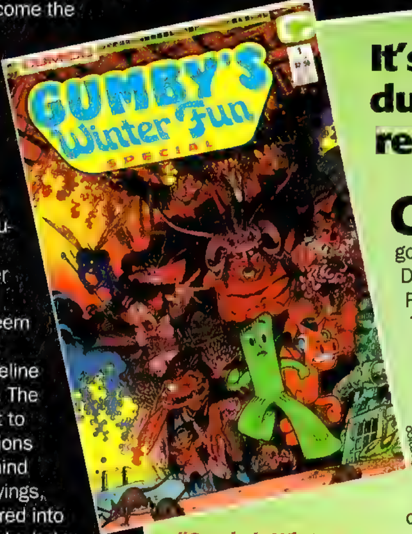
Tonight two caped adventurers swing across the Gotham skyline. Is Batman ready to tackle Rasputin and his masked master together? Just when things seem dim, Gotham's most famous feline enters the fray. The Catwoman, out to dispel accusations that she is behind Rasputin's slayings, has also ventured into the night. Will she help the Batman or will she leave him to struggle under the claws of the tiger?

Alan Grant provides a fast-paced tale of one night in Gotham City. From the first sign of trouble in Robinson Park to the final fate of the 'cats of Gotham', Grant maintains action and suspense, and even injects some humor into the mix. His characterization of the Catwoman as mischievous, cunning and proud is excellent. The return of the Catman, one of Batman's least active enemies, enhances the suspense and mystery. Grant wraps together neatly the various elements of the story—a vicious tiger loose in Gotham, the confrontation between the Batman and the Catman, the vacuous television newscaster, the Catwoman's attempt to clear herself, and even the story of two college students kidnapping stray cats for sale to a research laboratory. Yup, it's all in one issue. I checked.

Norm Breyfogle's in there too, doing his usual dazzling job on the Batman. Perhaps the most dynamic regular artist to draw the Batman in years, Breyfogle blends the moody darkness of Gotham with the action-filled escapades of the Batman. Though a little cartoonish in his renderings, Breyfogle captures the energy of Batman like no other penciler, and expertly directs the flow of the story.

You can sink your claws into "Cats" for $2.00 to $2.50. You won't be disappointed. ☾

It's the clay duo to the rescue!



"Gumby's Winter Fun Adventure"
Gumby's Winter Fun Special* #1
by Steve Purcell and Art Adams
Comico
December 1988

GUMBY'S DAD told them not to go by the toy mine. Did Gumby and Pokey listen? Nope. The explosion caught everyone by surprise. Somewhere deep inside the shafts a group of toy miners were trapped by the collapse. As the town scrambled to put rescue operations in motion, Mr. O'Day sent Gumby and Pokey to get help, but instead they dart home to ready the only device that can save the day—the Amazing X-5 Nitro Burning Dyna-Plunge Crust-Crawler Sedan! The X-5 is the only way to reach the miners in time.

Drilling underground, Gumby and Pokey tunnel through layers of toy-rich earth to reach the blocked section of the mine. They find it empty, the miners mysteriously missing. Could the Mole People have taken them? Deeper and deeper they tunnel, braving underground dangers. The miners must be saved!

This is only the beginning of an adventure that leads the clay duo to the vast underground world of the Mole People, and then even deeper to the hottest joint under the Earth's surface. There they must save Ray Crabbe, a powerful man trapped by evil forces and better known as—well, that'd be telling. But it gets even cooler from there! Lost on their way back to the surface Gumby and Pokey find themselves in a strange land where giant, rubbery monsters frolic in the ruins of a city. Only one thing can save them from being squashed into little clay puddles—I'm not gonna tell you what that is either, but it's really neat!

Steve Purcell spins an entertaining adventure laced with humor and clever twists. The unreal setting of Gumby's world allows the story to flow naturally from point to point, no matter how outrageous it might seem, and Gumby's wild ride through the Earth keeps readers in suspense and laughing. Art Adams perfectly blends cartoon art and realism to keep the story exciting and funny. His fondness for the material and attention to detail make the comic come alive on the page. Together Purcell and Adams have captured the wide-eyed sense of adventure that can set the imaginations of comic book readers on fire, a sense that is all too rare in modern comics. Gumby's Winter Fun Special is pure fun that doesn't take itself too seriously.

First East Coast phone card conference a success

THE TELECARD WORLD '94 Conference held at New York City's Jacob Javits Center from Wednesday, September 28 through Sunday, October 2, 1994 was an overall success for all who attended.

According to promoter Marc Ostrofsky rough attendance figures were in the 7,000 to 8,000 range. Attendees came from as far away as New Zealand, mainland China and just about all of Continental Europe (I met German, Italian, French and Czech collectors), England and even Africa. Among the exhibitors were Sprint, NYNEX, GTS, Rochester Telephone, People's Telephone, Nippon Tel, AmeriTech, AmeriVox and Brilliant Cards.

If there was one underlying focus of this event, it was the attendees trying to learn as much about this business as quickly as possible. They were also out to meet all the collectors, dealers and manufacturers in the business that they could. After all, this was the first major phone card conference to be held on the East Coast. In fact, one could say that education and networking were the real main courses of this event.

"Friday was the best day for me," said Steve Hark of NOS Communications on the last day of the show. "I came here to make contacts and I can't begin to tell you how many I made on Friday. On Saturday, we sold a lot of cards but I didn't meet as many people as I did the day before, so it wasn't as good a day."

If anything, a number of the attendees felt that if they made more contacts for future business, then they did fine. Strange as it might sound, sales of the cards were almost a secondary consideration.

All in all, a number of dealers did report doing good business in one form or another. Yet the fact remains that a number of people were more curiosity seekers than customers...for the moment.

Ostrofsky also said that he will be promoting two more conferences in the future. One will be on the West Coast and then there will be a second one in New York. The dates on those shows have yet to be announced.

Worldlink Children's Telecard to benefit Cancer Center

WorldLink Communications, Inc. announced they are doing a set of phone cards to benefit the Children's Christmas Card Project at the University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center of Houston.

The set features drawings by children at the center. Each card has the kids signature, age and hometown on the front. The cards retail for $10 each and there are three different cards. Each card is limited to 2,000.

WorldLink also announced that 20 percent of the proceeds will go to the center.

More cards are expected in the near future. ©

Future Call gets Star Trek phone card license

AT THE TELECARD WORLD CONFERENCE, THE Future Call Company, Inc. announced it had gotten the rights to all Star Trek phone cards. They also unveiled their first set of cards, based on the movie Star Trek VII: Generations. They also announced that there are two more sets in the works, one for the original TV series and one based on the TV show Star Trek: The Next Generation.

Each of these three sets will consist of 12 cards. They will have all the main characters and key scenes from the movies and television shows. They will range in price from $10 to $20 per card. Sets will be available, but what they will sell for was not available as of press time.

The cards are remote intelligent and also rechargeable. If you are wondering about the unit amounts, there are two levels. If you want to use the card as a straight phone card, then it costs you 60 cents per minute. On the other hand, Future Call has also announced a Star Trek information and game line that is voiced by none other than William Shatner. If you want to use that, it costs you one dollar per minute.

The Generations set will be out by the time you read this. The Original Series set was due out sometime late December. The Next Generation set will come out early this year.

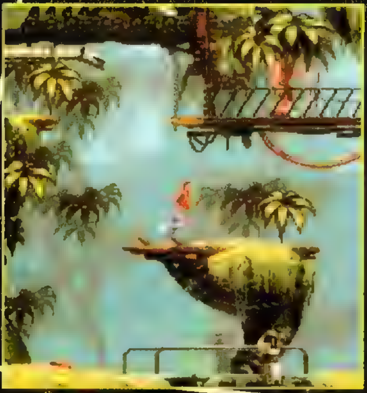
BY MARSHAL M. ROSENTHAL

FLASHBACK: THE QUEST FOR IDENTITY

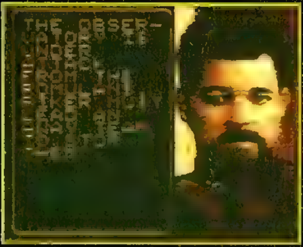


U.S. GOLD (3)

THAT SECRET agent Conrad Hart is at it again—this time he's after nasty Aliens out to destroy all of Earth. FLASHBACK: THE QUEST FOR IDENTITY is U.S. GOLD's sequel to the first, which had unusual polygon-shaped objects and characters. Over 2,000 frames of animation running at 24 frames per second to speed you through the

STAR TREK GENERATIONS: BEYOND THE NEXUS

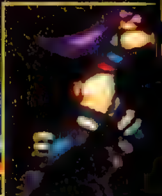
USUALLY YOU HAVE TO WAIT nearly a year to play something that's been in the movies—by that time who cares? Absolute smarted this out by releasing STAR TREK GENERATIONS: BEYOND THE NEXUS within a few weeks of the film's theater release (Game Boy and Game Gear versions). Now if you ain't a Trekker (like maybe 8% out there), then you don't care that Jean-Luc Picard, Data, Riker, and the rest of the gang are caught in some really bad futuristic stuff—or that it impacts back in the past on Captain Kirk and others from the original group. You'll be fighting off Klingon and Romulan starships, and controlling every aspect of the Enterprise's weapons and propulsion systems (even being forced to reroute conduits to adapt the systems to problems at hand). Orbit planets, send down Away-teams, engage in hand-to-phaser combat, and of course search for clues to keep the Universe from being destroyed (as usual).

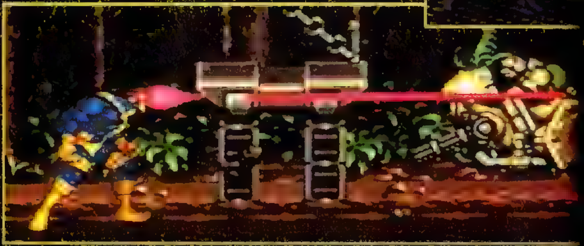


Absolute Ent. (4)

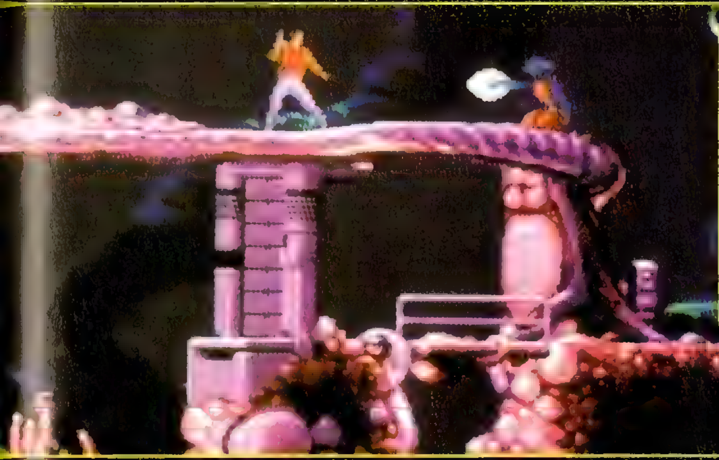
So it's a flight simulation, role-playing, arcade-style all wrapped in one eensy-bitty cart. And while game play's the same for both platforms, these days you can pop that GB cart in the Super Game Boy that plugs into the SNES console and even get color to go along with the bigger screen.

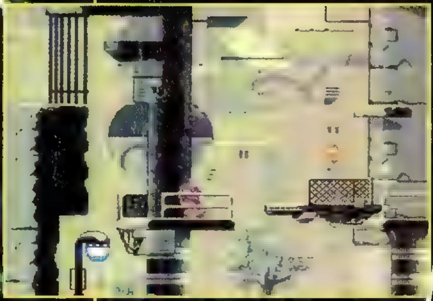
POWER LEVEL





Capcom (8)





seven levels. What's the beef? The Aliens wiped Hart's memory and dumped him in the Jungle.

Put those reflexes on overdrive—'cause this one's got arcade-style, puzzle-solving, platform action; as you take Hart through disgusting places on Earth (like New Washington D.C.), and on to the bizarre in Outer Space. Fighting off creatures and nasties with fists and weapons—with music, cinematic scenes, and tons of stuff to do—all in a cart for 3-D-O (Cinematic Scenes has added voice, sound effects, and new graphics) and for the 64-bit Jaguar. You even get a Marvel comic book.

X-MEN

WHAT ISN'T 'X' THESE DAYS—MARVEL'S MUTANTS ARE EVERYWHERE and here they are again in Capcom's X-MEN for the Super Nintendo. Wiping the floor with those bad mutant types is what it's all about—Magneto and Apocalypse are not friendly types. BIG GRAPHICS—are what does it here; dig the SENTINEL as he tries to clutch and crush Wolverine, Beast or Psylocke. Plenty of action—no gore 'cause it's SNES—with real good animation like in their Disney stuff, but this is a game you'll want to play. Check out blasting stuff just 'because' with Cyclops' eye-beams, or charging something up and letting it blow itself to smithereens (courtesy of Gambit). Got to bag the bad 'mutes, save the Planet, and get home in time for lunch.

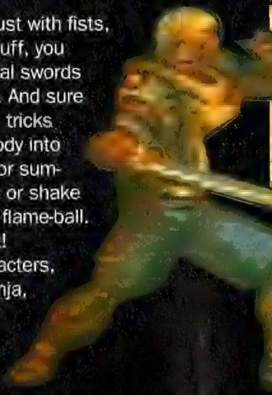
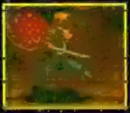
MINI REVIEW: SAMURAI SHODOWN

Takara Video Game Division (9)

FINALLY A FIGHTING GAME WITH SOME meat to it—uh, just what kind of strips are those danglin' from Hachmaru's teeth? SAMURAI SHODOWN goes from the arcade to 16-bit and retains the guts that makes it the Dark Force of those street-fighting games. Simple premise of course—you go against another guy (or gal) until one of you is pummeled into horizontal shape—and not just with fists, feet and karate stuff, you start out with lethal swords and knifes to use. And sure you've got special tricks that'll turn your body into a flaming sphere or summon up a tornado or shake the ground with a flame-ball. But you knew that!



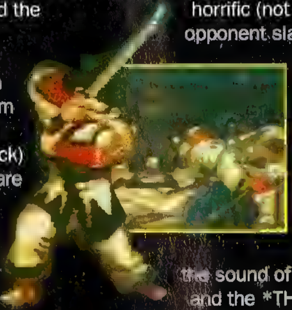
Eleven great characters, too. Some Samurais, a Ninja, even a so-called USA type called Galford (yeh, right). Kyoshiro is a kabuki-type with a great hair-piece, and Wan Fu is a big bulging bladder that's a combo of jello and cement and carts a really big scimitar. And the ladies are real cute; Nakoruru carries a sharp knife (lovely move is to flip you on your back, straddle on top and ram the knife into your chest) and Charlotte (French chick) who uses a rapier. Both are fun dates, for sure.



Game play has added stuff beside just trying to tear the other guy's head off—you can knock the sword out of your opponents hand and then keep him/her away from retrieving it. Catching your foes blade with yours sets up a match of strength, and the harder and faster you punch those buttons, the surer you are to push him back and take the match.

What's cool and diff in SAM is that some of the characters have got animal friends to help them out (read that as going for their opponents' jugular vein). Nakoruru has her flying eagle, Galford his wolf, and they join the fight on command—yeh, another special move to memorize besides all the others. But the animation really zips along, and the streaks of those swords slashin' their way really looks nifty.

But you didn't expect everything the arcade box had, did you? Neither the Genesis or Nintendo version does those hot view shifts from closeup to long shot and back as you fight. They're both locked into that standard left/right scrolling screen. The Sega doesn't have enough colors and so the characters often blend in with the background—the SNES looks a lot better.



Like you really care, when all you want is to try and slash off the other guys head! Which you can't, even with all the blood that showers everyone; but a hot win does sometimes result in a horrific (not really) view of your opponent slashed into two pieces before each flops in the dust.

The background muzak is kinda crude too, but stays in the background so you can ignore it; it's the sound effects that count—the sound of steel striking steel and the THUDS and BLAMS as the contestants smash into each other. Digitized along with the voices, natch—and except for the grunts of pain which are the same in any language, everybody seems to be speaking Japanese—though it does sound like the referee says 'Hoo-boy' when someone really lands a powerful blow.

SAMURAI SHODOWN CARD GIVEAWAY

You want something cool? How's 'bout Japanese trading cards of SAMURAI SHODOWN, how's 'bout a whole box? We grabbed three out of the greedy hands of Takara; you want 'em, send us a postcard with your name, address and phone number printed neatly on it. We'll pull three out of clenched and mighty fist and send it to ya. That's easy enough, right?

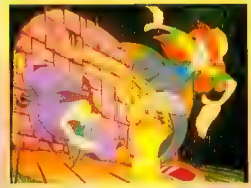
BRAINDEAD 13



Readysoft

CARTOON-TYPE animation is what you expect to see on the vid-screen, but a lot looks like old cheese under a tire. It takes heavy animators to do justice to the pixels—which is what [illegible] makes BRAINDEAD 13 a CD-ROM hoot-in-progress. Readysoft's team comes from guys who've worked on animated stuff for Don Bluth and Steven Spielberg's studios (like Beetlejuice, All Dogs Go To Heaven and We're Back)—and the same kind of smooth looking graphics are on their way to every CD-ROM that Readysoft can find (Sega CD, 3DO, Jaguar, etc.)

Storyline runs as follows: You get called in to fix a computer system in Dr. Neuro Neurosis' castle. Once you've got the glitches out, the 'good' (make that 'bad') Doc tells you that now he can go ahead and take over all the computer networks and rule the world. Now this is something to be taken seriously—especially as Neurosis is a disembodied brain floating in goo! So now it's up to you to search through the castle, avoiding the traps and dangers, while trying to find and trash computer terminals.

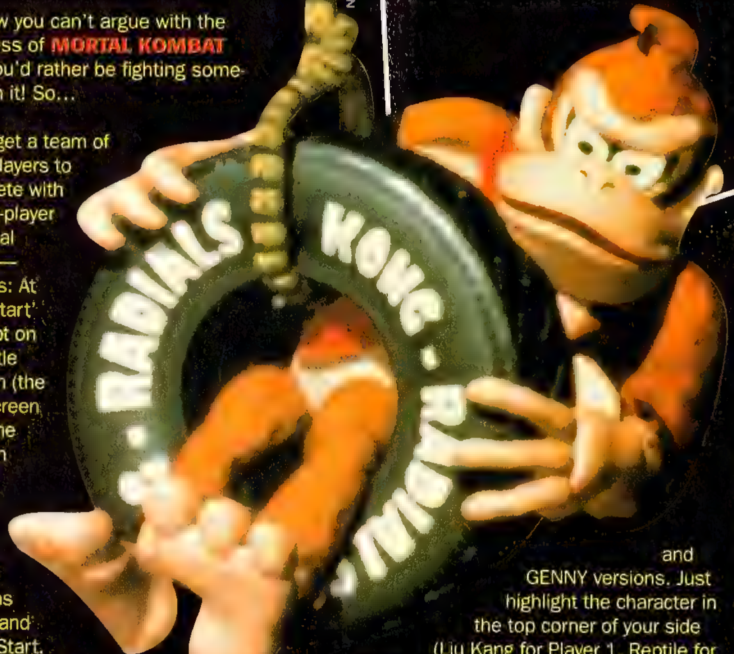
TIPS & TRICKS

■ DONKEY KONG COUNTRY is shaping up as one heavy hitter for SNES, with the kind of graphics you see on those high-end computer workstations (and coming on Nintendo's ULTRA 64 machine by the end of this year).

Platform action needs good reflexes, and every little bit helps—so here's a quick tip: Don't always start a game expecting something to be happening in front of you! When Donkey Kong flies in at the very beginning of level one, reverse course and head him back out the way he came. You'll zip into Mr. D's Tree House—look around and there'll be a balloon waiting with an extra life inside.



Nintendo of America (2)

■ Now you can't argue with the success of MORTAL KOMBAT II—you'd rather be fighting someone in it! So...

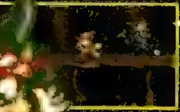
■ To get a team of four players to compete with in two-player survival mode—do this: At the 'Start' prompt on the Title screen (the red screen with the dragon logo), hold the L and R buttons down and push Start. Sorry Sega, this only works on the Super Nintendo, but you can let the game pick your player at random in both the SNES and GENNY versions. Just highlight the character in the top corner of your side (Liu Kang for Player 1, Reptile for Player 2) and push up while pressing Start.

■ And for a spot of violent fun—look sharp after winning the second round of the Dead Pool area. When the 'Finish Him' message appears, quickly press and hold down both the Low Punch and Low Kick buttons. Then move in close and execute a normal uppercut. The result is an 'interesting' Dead Pool fatality.

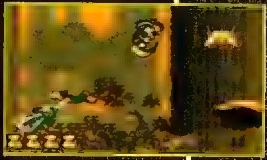
■ And when you're playing ZERO, it sure wouldn't hurt to have unlimited throwing stars. Easy enough; Pause the game—then press Down on the Control Pad, and punch the A button and then B.

You can reach Marshal Rosenthal on the Internet at marshalr@pipeline.com.

ZERO THE KAMIKAZI SQUIRREL



WHY IS IT WE ALWAYS LIKE the bad guys better than the goodies—ZERO, the trouble-making flying squirrel, took on that Aero the Acrobat guy and now has his own SNES game (Sunsoft). He's still slightly (more) crazy, and looking to make some trouble for Jacques Le Sheets , a bent-on capitalism lumberjack who's devastating Zero's forest home. So off goes Zero to take him on: 'course there's a lot standing between him and this final confrontation. Like toxic waste, lava fields, hidden rooms, robots , secret transporters (that you have to inflate) and seven locations (each filled with their own set of levels). But since Zero has martial arts moves, can attack with Nunchukas, in a variety of leaping, spinning, swooping ways, and toss throwing stars; sure he'll do all right (maybe). Check out that Super Dive Attack that gives enough "oomph" so he can glide across really dangerous areas; the dude really zips along.



Sunsoft (9)

Good looking graphics with mucho detail, fast-moving animation and of course lots of items to find and use—whacking off the bad guys leaves coins and goodies. And when he gets tired, he can always try and find the Jetpack or the Speedboat. Zero's a busy guy.

Gaming Cards: An Introduction

THE CONCEPT OF TRADING cards has been around since cigarette manufacturers first put pictures of baseball players in packages of their product. In recent years cards have expanded their subject matter to include other sports, comic book heroes and fantasy art. The field has become so diversified and eclectic that recent series have included everything from mass murderers to famous artists.

Trading and collecting these cards for personal satisfaction and financial gain has created a booming industry in which individual collectors vie and jockey with each other to obtain rare and valuable cards. In the past such cards were sought for their financial value, or for a collector's desire to complete a collection. Now with the introduction of Gaming Cards, collectors have another reason to seek out those rare cards—they represent power in the game.

These games have been described as a hybrid between traditional card games and role-playing games. Considering that individual deck configurations, called decks, can develop a personality and feel all their own —like a role-playing character— this could be said to be true. The analogy continues to hold if one looks at a deck as if it were a spell casting character's spell book. All the powers and spells that are available to that character, including the individual preferences and strategies contained therein, are represented by these cards. This so-called spell book would be enhanced or limited by each encounter with another player.

However, these games also have the feel of a more traditional card game. There are hands to be dealt and played, and even, if so desired, an ante to be wagered. Players spend as much time trying to guess the cards in their opponents' hand and what he or she is going to do with it, as any poker player. The art of the bluff is not lost in this game.

Simultaneously, gaming cards are also somewhat reminiscent of certain war games. Avalon Hill's Naval War comes to mind immediately. The cards are played much like the fleets are deployed in that game. Strategy is also very important in playing one's hand, especially when it comes to which forces are to be marshaled and which are to be held in reserve in case of a counter-attack.

Despite all of these similarities, gaming cards manage to create an entirely novel type of gaming. Due to different possible deck sizes and compositions each contest is unique from the last. In some game systems the deck composition can change literally between each match. This ever shifting atmosphere and the challenge of trying to match an opponent's strategy skill and deck has an appeal and charm all its own.

These games are designed so that cards can be exchanged between players at various times. The cards have different powers and effects and no single card is essential to playing the game. Some are more powerful than others or more versatile and are therefore more valuable to the player, but the loss of them does not preclude the player from continuing to enjoy the pastime. Other cards can be dealt and played in varying ways, and the best players tend to be those who can think quickly and adapt to a new and constantly changing situation.

The cards themselves are much like their ancestors, and are meant to be traded between players who are trying to build a specific deck. One game even has the players wager or ante a card on the outcome of the encounter, to help insure constantly shifting decks. With the periodic release of new cards and individual players constantly finding new ways to use old cards, the game stays fresh and challenging for each participant.

The artwork on the cards tends to be from good to superior quality, with one company reproducing art that has appeared in its other popular games and magazines. This tends to attract the players attention to and adds to the desirability of an individual card. Players bargain with each other for the cards as often for the artwork as for the playability of the card.

A huge following for gaming cards has suddenly cropped up across the country and the industry is booming. The starter decks are relatively inexpensive (about $8.95), and easy to learn how to play. The booster packs that are sold to supplement a deck are also priced reasonably ($2.50 to $2.95) and allow the player to build a deck without a major cash investment.

The most popular gaming card systems are Magic: The Gathering and Jyhad from Wizards of the Coast, Inc., Spellfire: Master the Magic from TSR and Star Trek: The Next Generation Customizable Card Game from Decipher Games. In future installments of this column we will explore these systems and a number of others, and then move on into a more detailed discussion of tactics and strategies. Until next time.

PLAY THE GAME

Wanna be a Vampire?

White Wolf's Vampire: The Masquerade

Why can't we sleep forever, ust want to start this over.
—Tool, "Sober"

IT'S DIVERSE QUOTES such as these that White Wolf Game udio uses to help spire the dark moods nd horrific feel for ampire: The Masquer- [illegible]

Vampire is the first in series of games entitled "The Storyteller Series." ole-playing games that place emphasis on the aracter (role) aspect of aming rather than the roll of the dice. What I like to call, "Fervent Gaming." hough a fairly old game bout three years), Vampire still one of the best non-traitional games around. No ragons, no cyborgs, and no, just keep shooting 'till he's ead."

As players, you are young nd inexperienced vampires no have just been released om their Sires. Your main goal to survive as long as you can cities of never-ending night, hile fighting off the inner-Beast that drives you towards Inhumanity. While searching for tery Cocktails, you will face the likes of erewolves, neo-azi gangs, smelly ab drivers, and eranged CIA agents who know you exist. ou're utterly oomed before you ven start—a real [illegible]

As the Storyteller, ou're basically just...well, telling a tory without having to keep up with a million hard facts and a calculator. The rules are fairly simple, as there really are none. Besides paper and pencil, a ten sided die is all that's needed to play, but not required. Vampire's main book reads like a reference guide for inspiration to fire the imagination. So even if you don't play, it's still interesting enough to enjoy.

White Wolf's companion volume The Book of Nod reveals the origins and lore of vampires.

White Wolf Game Studio (4)

Vampire should not be jumped right into if you intend to play the game as intended by its creators. Furthermore, if you're not familiar with White Wolf's other gaming products, I would begin Vampire with other first-timers as well, so as to create a new world that hasn't been explored by those so-called "Advanced Players." But if you're persistent in sitting at the experienced table and staying in the game, here's my suggestions on Vampire play for the newcomer. Or more appropriately, the Neonate.

1). First off, you need to buy White Wolf's Vampire: The Masquerade, Second Edition in hard cover, for about twenty five dollars.

2). Now read it cover to cover, and then back again. By then your head should be so full of Gothic lore and horror, you are either afraid to use the bathroom, or you have a monster of a character that's just waiting to spring out.

3). Before you go any further, look up the live-action rules and cut them out. Running around and pretending to actually be your character in the physical sense, is not my idea of role-playing and should not be practiced. Besides, the imagination is stronger and more vivid than tangible reality.

4). Create the character and choose a clan for your new vampire to belong to. There are seven basic clans to choose from: Brujah, Gangrel, Malkavian, Nosferatu, Toreador, Tremere, and Ventrue. I would suggest Brujah. The Brujah clan are the punks and radicals of the undead society, and are restricted by few...make that by nothing. You can finally be that rebel your parents wouldn't allow you to become. If you want to dish out some more cash, go out and purchase the Clan Book: Brujah. Everything you need to know about the clan is listed, along with some archetype characters (including skin-heads and rappers—what a happy clan they must be) that will help inspire the mood for the game. Though if Brujah's not your fruit punch, then there are books for the other six clans available.

5). Now that you and your friends are fully equipped and ready—it's time to begin. For best play results, there should be about four players and one Storyteller. The Storyteller might want to get himself a copy of The Storytellers Handbook. This little beauty will aid him along the way, and is compatible with the other Storyteller games. For even better inspiration though, I would suggest an Anne Rice novel, or her movie Interview With The Vampire. The dreamers at White Wolf even go as far as to list these and other mind shooters for you.

I thought it would be proper to end this column (a column that used its entire space to try to bring a little more sophistication into the "unaware" gamers' life) with a note of desperation.

The intelligence insulter of the year:

The worst game of 1994 goes to: The World Wrestling Federation Basic Adventure Game, and every other WWF role-playing product from Whit Publications.

INDEPENDENT REVIEW

Funny animals and the fate of the world in Sin Comics

SIN COMICS
NUMBER ONE!!! WINTER 1993!
IF
ATOMIC CITY
40 SINSATIONAL PAGES!

Black Eye Productions (4)

SIN COMICS #1 FROM Black Eye Productions is a different type of comic than what we usually review here in "Independent Review." Why? Because the book's main characters are funny animals not superheroes. And no, they're not funny animals in the 1940s Peter Porkchop sense. They're funny animals for the nineties.

This book is also different in its free-flowing format. It's like watching a late, late, late TV show. One of those you turn on at three o'clock in the morning and are compelled to watch because it is so bizarre. It even comes with commercial breaks and cartoons. I'll explain.

Sin Comics #1 opens with an introductory narration by creator Jay Stephens. This introduction is not what you think. It is not a text piece. Sherman actually draws himself into the comic and takes insulting shots at himself. He then beats up one of the funny animal characters and has his life threatened by a monster. All this happens in the first two pages, even before the actual story begins.

Separated into four chapters, the main story, "Power Trip" stars the character Big Bang. In it Big Bang has just discovered the ability to do anything. He rises through a table, makes his beer stay permanently cold and really weirds out his friends. His biggest dilemma is deciding whether to first cure AIDS or save the rain forests. What he chooses is quite unexpected.

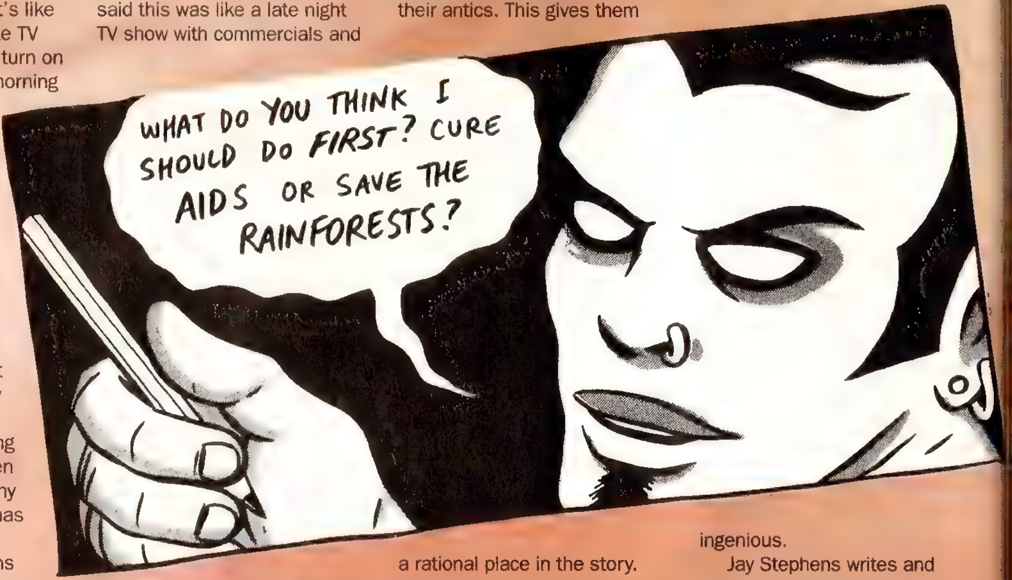
By now you must be asking yourself, "Where are the funny animals?" I'm getting to them. I said this was like a late night TV show with commercials and cartoons. Each chapter of the main story is divided by a funny animal strip that serves as a commercial break. These funny animals aren't your usual. They are far from cute and they are prone to cursing, kicking butt, causing trouble, picking their noses and other bodily functions.

Jay Stephens ties them into the story by making one of the main "human" characters read a comic book that contains their antics. This gives them a rational place in the story. Not that they really needed one! These characters and the adventures they are placed in will definitely tickle your funny bone.

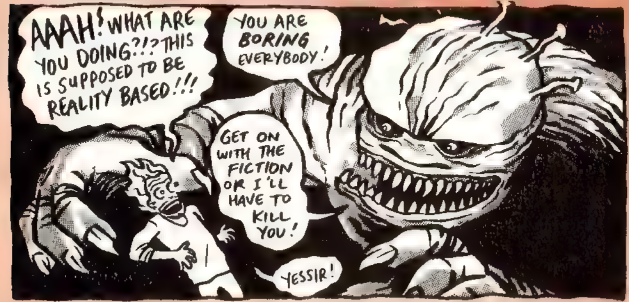
Another Jay Stephens narrative closes the story, but that is far from the end of Sin Comics #1. The finale is a page called "Baffling Funnies." This is a visual interpretation of someone's dream. You read that right. They visually interpret a dream in comic format. It is ingenious.

Jay Stephens writes and draws the entire comic. Stephens' story is simple but truly compelling. His art style is reminiscent of Mike Allred's Madman. In tribute to Madman, as well as a host of other characters, Stephens has included them on the cover of this first issue that looks like The Beatles Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band album.

From beginning to end Sin Comics #1 is a winner. It is definitely a bit on the strange side, but that is what makes the comic medium special. There is something for everyone.



WHAT DO YOU THINK I SHOULD DO FIRST? CURE AIDS OR SAVE THE RAINFORESTS?



AAAH! WHAT ARE YOU DOING?!? THIS IS SUPPOSED TO BE REALITY BASED!!!
YOU ARE BORING EVERYBODY!
GET ON WITH THE FICTION OR I'LL HAVE TO KILL YOU!
YESSIR!

Big Bang considers granting world peace (above), while the cartoonist gets prodded in Sin Comics #1.

Strange Attractors* — full of intrigue.

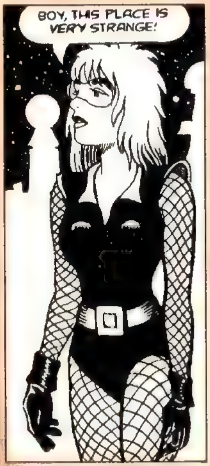
BY CAT KOUNS

SMALL PRESS

'Graphic' illustrations of the freedom of choice

WELCOME TO THE first installment of a column dedicated to news and views on independent comics. The title of this month's missive reflects my views on the independent press in a nutshell: freedom of choice. Without these pioneers and visionaries, the comics industry would be completely overrun with cookie-cutter heroes in spandex. Not that superheroes aren't nice to look at or even fun to read, but other visions, other genres are needed in order to have a healthy industry, in order to have balance. RetroGrafix offers readers a choice that harks back to the "good old days" of comics, when the story over-rode the action, when excitement wasn't counted in cleavage and when violence had a point important to the plot. Strange Attractors, the bimonthly title by Michael Cohen and Mark Sherman (the people behind RetroGrafix) is a delectable book full of intrigue and adventure, dusted with self-discovery and romance all done up in the timeless black and white art style of the 1940s and 1950s.

According to artist and co-creator Cohen, the project began as one for his own amusement, "mostly to see if I could finish a story." And then, with help from long-time friend and writer Sherman, the elements of the early story were woven into a tightly plotted storyline which combines their favorite elements of the science-fiction, fantasy, adventure and romantic genres. The story is character-driven with the world of Strange Attractors being seen through the eyes of the heroine, Sophie.



BOY, THIS PLACE IS VERY STRANGE!

Sophie in Strange Attractors #4.

Thus far Sophie has evolved from a shy, comic book reading recluse (her favorite is Spicy Space Stories) working alone, save for her robot companion Roshi, in the all-but forgotten Museum of Lost Things, to a reluctant adventurer blasting off into space with her hero Pirate Peg of the Moon Marauders, in order to rescue Sophie's best friend Widow. When last we left our heroine and her idol, they were in the clutches of The Collector and Peg was about to stand trial.

Issue #7 picked up with Peg's trial and, at the time this article was written, Cohen was not giving anything away. "Yes, we will see the whole trial including the verdict!" he says, "Some damaging evidence will come to light and things look bad for Pirate Peg." More than that he would not disclose, other than to note that for some mysterious reason Peg says nothing in defense of herself at the trial which could be construed as an admission of guilt. Or could it?

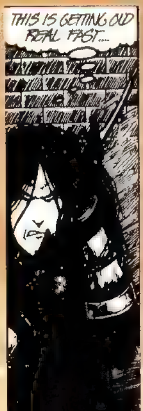
Future plans for Strange Attractors highlight the growing tension within Sophie. Her two personal heroines, Pirate Peg and Nurse Nebula, are polar opposites. During the trial, Sophie will come face to face with violence beyond what she's read about. This confrontation puts her into conflict with herself, with the adventurer (Peg) on one side and the healer (Nebula) on the other. The literary conflict of Man vs. Self is as old as the craft of storytelling and something Cohen does quite well.

The storytelling is classic and charming. The art is lyric with clean lines and smooth curves. As Cohen says, he likes drawing women and his style reflects it. Strange Attractors is a good read, one readers owe to themselves to pick up.

Poison Elves: Nasty!

ANOTHER GOOD "PICK UP" IS POISON Elves, the bimonthly title from Mulehide Graphics. Created, written and drawn by Drew Hayes, this book gives a completely different spin on elves.

Hayes' elves aren't cute and whimsical. They aren't noble and elegant with greater meaning behind their every motivation and word. They aren't honorable tribal spirits of the natural world. They, particularly Lusiphur, the main character, are gritty, nasty-tempered and usually pissed off at the world at large. Every time Luse turns around, the world is kicking him in the teeth. No matter how hard this elf tries to just go about his business and how badly he wants to be left alone, fate, it seems, is always looking for a way to have a laugh at his expense. Once again, this is a character-driven book that most readers can easily get into.



THIS IS GETTING OLD REAL FAST...

Lusiphur in Elves #17.

Mulehide Graphics (2)

Through issue #17, with gorgeous covers by Janine Johnston and the occasional walk-on by Hawk Ericson, the Elflord character created by Barry Blair, Poison Elves is off and running with a multi-issue storyline entitled "Desert of the Third Sin" that just keeps getting hotter!

TURNING BACK THE CLOCK

BY RON LEVIN

Gum, Inc.'s G-Men and Heroes of the Law

LONG BEFORE THE days of Charles Manson, Ted Bundy, Jeffrey Dahmer and True Crime serial killer trading cards, we had "Machine-Gun" Kelly, "Pretty-Boy" Floyd, "Baby-Face" Nelson and of course, G-Men and Heroes of the Law! In 1936 and 1937, the gum card manufacturing king, Gum, Incorporated, issued a landmark card set. J. Warren Bowman and his people at Gum, Inc. put together one of the most sought-after and toughest-to-complete sets of the era.

G-Men became a huge seller by taking from a strategic marketing idea popularized by their competitor. Goudey's 1933 Indian Gum set was the first to skip-number its cards in order to keep people spending their hard-earned pennies to buy more gum so they could complete their sets. Yet only 168 of the skip-numbered series of [presumably] 240 cards, (as claimed on the back of each G-Men card) have been accounted for during the sixty years the set has been around.

G-MEN RUN DOWN A DARING KIDNAPPER

Early cards in Gum. Inc.'s series G-Men & Heroes of the Law. #17 (Perry) with a white strip; #20 (Bailey) without one.

Five of the 168 cards, #28, #57, #88, #94 and #100 are similar to the Horrors of War Hitlers and to the 1959 Three Stooges checklists, currently at the zenith of this hobby. They may not be quite as scarce as the awesome yet-to-be-found U.S. Caramel William McKinley or a non-canceled "I'm Going to be…" A Strong Man, but they are the next best thing. Each of the five became exceedingly rare because of Mr. Bowman's sly marketing technique. They hold near mint values of about $400 to $500 each, that is, if one is lucky enough to find them.

To further complicate any attempt to put together a complete set, cards numbered 1 through 24 were issued by both Gum, Inc. and an impostor, whose cards look nearly identical. On the originals, the dark tan backgrounds on the back side have copyright information, while the copycat cards, priced at about half of the originals, have a lighter tan back and no copyright mention. The tricksters had apparently issued their version anonymously, before any copyright was declared by Gum, Inc., and they were actually issued prior to the release of the genuine ones.

Attempting to complete the $6,000 to $7,000 G-Men set could prove to be extremely challenging. A further confusion with the first 24 cards is that some of these low numbers were issued with strips beneath the artwork, which are slightly less expensive than the same cards that do not have the strip. "Star" cards, short-prints and condition-sensitive cards make for static pricing of individual cards. Specific details on these cards and G-Men wrappers can be found in the price guide section of this magazine.

American G-Men, America Salutes the F.B.I. and the grand-daddy of them all, G-Men and Heroes of the Law top the hobby's list of "most desirables" as far as law enforcement sets go. G-Men's artwork is sometimes racist, often gory, but always high-quality featuring notorious criminals and valiant government agents. The degree of quality art is clearly the difference between Gum, Inc. sets of the 1930s and all the others. With lengthy text on the backs of each card, a true history lesson of America's heroes and villains can be gained by studying them. So the next time you want to find out about Sgt. Reilly, The Death of "Dutch" Anderson, or a murder on an Arizona Trail, just turn to the G-Men and Heroes of the Law!

IT'S BACK! THE PLAYBOY Centerfold Collection, newly licensed to Sports Time Card Company (Marilyn Diamond Collection) continues with the February Edition in the same format (129 card set) as the popular January Edition released in 1993 by The Private Collection. In addition to the regular set, Celebrity subsets this time are LaToya Jackson, Morganna, and Bo Derek. Also available is a six-card Playmate of the Year subset featuring POY Jenny McCarthy. Sports Time president Paul Siegel promises to add some new touches and improvements—such as better collation—while retaining the general format. "We'll bring all Sport Time resources to bear" he added, "to make this the best series on the market." Looks like the set should price at about $30 for the 129 card set, including six March Preview cards. If past is prologue, the January Edition ($25-$35) may see a jump in popularity with the release of the February edition. Look for the March Edition, and subsequent monthly editions every few months thereafter.

First Hologram Adult Phone Card

Hot Shots is producing the first hologram adult phone card, featuring Brandy. Production is limited to 2,500 cards ($15-$17).

Too much Sunshine can be good for you

New from Double Vision Enterprises (3-D Damsels) is the California Sunshine Girls 21-card factory set featuring adult video and men's magazine star Becky Sunshine. Becky and the other Sunshine Girls are rendered in the 3-D format that made the 99-card 3-D Damsels ($25-$30) popular with collectors. Each factory set will include one limited edition card also. Double Vision's Robert Jameson assures collectors that the 3-D viewers used for 3-D Damsels will work with California Sunshine Girls as well.

Collectors who long for the romantic, carefree days of the open road (or truck stops and diners!) will enjoy the upcoming Girls of Route 66 set from Image 2000. Showcasing beautiful models photographed at famous landmarks along the nostalgic route that stretches from Illinois to California, each of the five 20-card sets will depict a different state or combination of states along the route. Card backs form a puzzle map of the route.

Recent dealer price updates to note

Price updates from recent shows and dealer ads: Asian Beauties (48) $13-$15; Hot Shots 3 Fantasy Series 1 (150) $20-$24; Collecteon de Carde (40) $12-$15; Hustler Anniversary 2 (60) $18-$20.

Topps (3)

Vampirella Art by Stevens, Linsner and Kelly.

If you think she looked good on paper...

Topps has announced a new Vampirella release, slated for February 1995. Chances are Vampirella, which will feature brand new artwork plus classic images by comic and fantasy artists (Frazetta, Kaluta, Kelly, Stevens, etc.) will predate their previously announced Betty Page all art set which was to be Topps' first foray into the mature theme genre. No word on when, and if, the Betty Page set will see the light of day.

TREASURE CHEST

Remembering TV's Good Ol' Days

WELCOME TO COMBO's column on collectibles with a following but not the publicity of the better known mainstream collectibles. Some of the diverse things that people are collecting will surprise you, while other items will confirm what you've known all along... if the quantity is fixed, the date of production can be verified, and the object reflects the culture of the times or the evolution of that particular item, somebody somewhere is collecting it.

One of these items is the children's metal theme lunch box. The last of which (Rambo), was produced in 1987, before the complete switch to injected plastic was made. One reason for the big switch was the production costs. But another major consideration was that parents were complaining that their little darlings were using the metal lunch boxes to whack each other on the school playground. Metal lunch boxes were actually banned in some areas of the country.

Aladin And Hoppy Were First...

While there were a few attempts at marketing children's lunch kits before the advent of television, these efforts met with limited success, and have as yet to catch on with paileontologists (lunch pail collectors). But then in 1950, the Aladin Company, a producer of generic adult lunch kits, got together with a singing TV cowboy named Hopalong Cassidy, and introduced what is considered to be the granddaddy of modern collectible character lunch boxes.

It was a simple creation consisting of a solid red enamel box with a colorful sticker of Hoppy. The sticker was placed on a raised square the same size as the current television screen in the middle of the box's lid. A matching bottle was also included.

Jealous of his TV rival's financial success and new found notoriety, Roy Rogers decided he wanted his own picture on a lunch box. After failing to convince Aladin it could use a second singing TV cowboy, Rogers approached the American Thermos Company, a producer of vacuum bottles.

Although it took him three attempts, Rogers convinced American Thermos to produce a lunch box with his likeness. It came out in 1953, and was an instant smash hit. The technique of using a fully lithographed metal box made the box's sides look like the wood surrounding the current television cabinet, reinforcing the TV metaphor. The technique also became the original industry standard.

The next big change in paileontology came in 1957 with Aladin's introduction of the first dome lithographed lunch box. The Buccaneer reflected the country's pirate craze of the time and was highly successful. The following year American Thermos came out with it's first dome, simply entitled The Barn. Its target market was small town America.

(You should be aware that in 1959, the American Thermos Company was bought by King Seeley and became the King Seeley Thermos Company or simply KST).

Eventually, through the licensing of the hottest contemporary properties, KST and Aladin came to dominate the market, squeezing out all the competition. These companies included: ADCO Liberty, Universal, and Ohio Arts, which is better known as the maker of Etch-A-Sketch. While lunch boxes produced by these companies are desired collectibles, the lunch boxes produced by the "big two" of the industry are even more so.

In the following years, while lunch boxes covered many different topics from astronaut John Glenn's space shot to rock and roll's Beatles, television shows and cartoons remained the favorite and most profitable topics for lunch box producers. If you can remember a popular family TV sitcom or cartoon show that was produced in the sixties or seventies, chances are a lunch box was created for it.

One reminder, lunch kits made from vinyl and canvass during the same period are also highly prized as collectible pieces. But that's another story for another time.

TEN LUNCH BOXES FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION

The following Checklist contains some of the most popular collectible metal lunch boxes made by Aladin, American Thermos or KST between 1950 and 1987.

	Box & Bottle near mint value
1950 (Aladin) Hopalong Cassidy The lunch box that started it all.	$130.00
1953 (American Thermos) Roy Rogers & Dale Double R Ranch First box to introduce full lithography. It immediately became the industry standard.	$130.00
1957 (Aladin) Buccaneer Dome with matching Bottle The first dome style box issued. The artist included his likeness on two doubloons shown.	$260.00
1963 (Aladin) The Jetsons Dome with matching Bottle Currently the most desired lunch box by paileontologists. The colors are phenomenal!	$850.00
1968 (Aladin) Disney School Bus Dome The most popular Disney lunch box of all time. It sold over nine million units.	$60.00
1965 (KST) The Munsters The first smash hit in television sitcom lunch kits for King Seeley Thermos.	$220.00
1967 (KST) Lost in Space Dome One of the most popular lunch boxes on the collectible lunch box circuit. Hard to find mint.	$590.00
1968 (Aladin) The Star Trek Dome The only licensed lunch box of the original television series; need I say more?	$750.00
1966 (Aladin) The Beatles Fab Four painted by renown lunch box artist Elmer Lehnhardt. Sold over 600,000 units.	$400.00
1985 (KST) Rambo The last American metal lunch box produced.	$15.00

Our Cancer Year

Harvey Pekar and Joyce Brabner's Our Cancer Year is a book along the same lines as Art Spiegelman's Maus—it is the tale of a real life survivor. Its content is a little heavy, but it is extremely heartfelt. This book-length comic chronicles the year in their lives they had to deal with Pekar having cancer and his fight to overcome it and survive. This is definitely not one for the masses, but because it chronicles their real life events, it keeps you totally enthralled. Pekar and Brabner's text, coupled with art by Frank Stack, make this read unforgettable. This is one of those books that even people who have never read a comic in their lives will like. It should be required reading!

Animaniacs

I'm not one to watch TV cartoons, but one afternoon I left work early, walked into the house and found my three kids and wife belly-laughing while watching three animated birds who sounded very much like Joe Pesci, Robert DeNiro and Ray Liotta.

I sat down and joined the fun. It didn't take long for me to realize I was watching "Good Feathers," a segment of Animaniacs, and thoroughly enjoying it.

ANIMANIACS

The whole show just makes me laugh. From Pesto, Bobby and Squid to Pinky and the Brain, Mime Time, Good Idea/Bad Idea..."Good Idea: Feeding cats in the park...Bad Idea: feeding cats in the park to a bear," to The Wheel of Morality, this is one show that makes me feel like a kid again. That's it! Okay, I love you, B-Bye.

Superman: The Man of Steel Platinum Cards

Hey dudes, the Man of Steel is back and looking more muscle-bound than ever before. Those genius' at SkyBox have created two awesome 90-card editions (a Collector's set and a Platinum set) featuring original art of the one and only Superman! These jumbo (2 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches) cards tell the life of Superman—from his birth on Krypton to his death and his incredible return from the dead. The Collector's Edition is really cooool, but the Platinum Edition is totally "fly!" No pun, man. You have to run to your local hang-out, I mean hobby shop, and buy up as many packs of these Platinum cards as possible. Why?

First of all, they made less than 8,000 cases of them. That's a "way-too-low" print run. SkyBox also put some awesome inserts in the packs such as—two Man of Steel hologramming SkyDiscs and four gotta-have "Forged in Steel" bonus inserts etched in blinding-silver foil. But wait—there's more! Every freakin' card has "steel plate" embossed borders. SkyBox and Superman, what an invincible combo!

David Karp

Doom II

Lots of action and lots of weapons (even a chainsaw—I'm sure you know). What can be said about such a fabulously evil, virtual reality-ish, 3-D, rock 'em sock 'em, blow-everybody-away game?

If you haven't tried it, then you haven't really lived—video game-wize, that is.

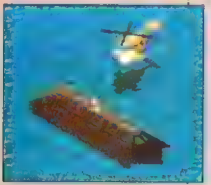
I'm not trying to say I advocate violence, but when it's just a video game then who cares? It's not for the faint of heart and it's not for those who like games like Donkey Kong. It's a game for adventure seekers with the wit to make it through to the end!

Now, if I could only figure out how to make it to level three.

Dale Jacobs

Urban Strike

First there was Desert Strike, then Jungle Strike. Now comes Urban Strike, the latest sequel from Electronic Arts for your Sega Genesis System. If you're a fan, like me, of the other two games, then you must check this one out!



Urban Strike has all new special effects, plus more. This time you can fly a different, more heavily-armored chopper called a Blackhawke on certain levels, leave your chopper and take on the enemy with your own MR9 machine gun. You can also take over a GAV (ground assault vehicle) and fly around U.S. structures, such as the Golden Gate Bridge, Alcatraz Prison, and New York City rooftops. This sequel is much easier (so far) than the last two, and a lot more fun!

Mike Eacott

Star Trek: Voyager

Surprise! Paramount's made a fourth live action Star Trek series!

Star Trek: Voyager tells the story of two starships shot so far away from Earth that it will take 90 years for them to get back. One of the ships is destroyed, so both crews are stuck on the surviving starship Voyager. The crew—a mush of humans and familiar Star Trek aliens—has to deal with the fact that they might not ever see home again. Will it be good Star Trek or Battlestar Galactica?

Voyager is an awful name, too; it reminds me of Voyager 6, the probe which became V'Ger in Star Trek: The Motion Picture.

Nonetheless, I wholeheartedly recommend that you watch this series. Why? Because I've liked all the other series, despite whatever doubts I had in the beginning.

And hey, if you like the show, read Malibu's Star Trek: Voyager comics. Why? Same reason.

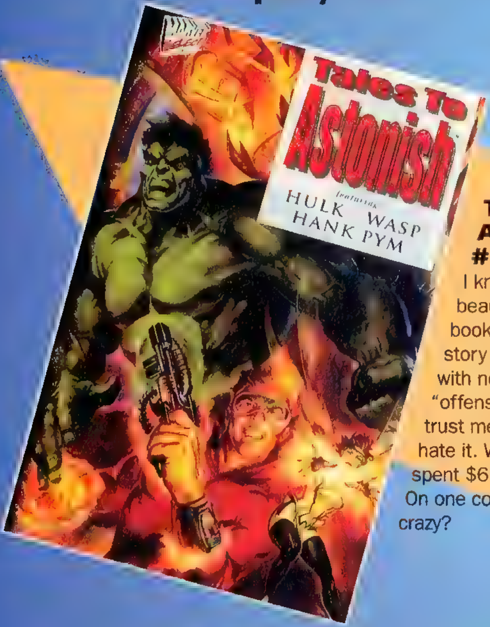
COMICS YOUR MOM WILL HATE

She may hate 'em, but we still think they're pretty cool!



Tales To Astonish
featuring
HULK WASP
HANK PYM

Tales to Astonish #1

I know this is a beautifully painted book with a great story by Peter David with nothing really "offensive" inside. But trust me, mom will hate it. Why? You just spent $6.95 on a comic. On one comic. Are you crazy?

Viper #2

I can hear mom, now. "Why would anyone buy a comic based on a stupid TV show that was canceled? Can you blame her?

RADIOACTIVE MAN

Radioactive Man #1000

The comic says, "Bart Simpson's Favorite Comic Book" right on the cover. Do you think your mom wants you liking anything Bart likes? I think not!

BEAVIS AND BUTT-HEAD

Beavis and Butt-head #9

Don't make me explain it! Huh-Huh!

MORTAL KOMBAT

Mortal Kombat #3

"Isn't this the video game where they rip out people's hearts? And they made a comic out of it?"

The Punisher Armory #10

Guns, guns, and more guns. Moms just love guns.

YOUNGBLOOD

Youngblood #8

You'll love it, it has Spawn. She'll hate it, a couple of nasty decapitations on page 22.

VENGEANCE OF THE AZTECS

Vengeance of the Aztecs #3

Mom will love this one. It's not labeled "For Adults Only" and Plasma Baby, the book's star, is running around with his weenie flapping around. Not a pretty sight!

Mantra #14

You'll be all right with this one as long as mom never finds out that Mantra is a man in a woman's body. She'll never get it!

Hellina #1

I don't know about you, but my mom wouldn't let me buy a comic with a half naked babe carrying a whip and knife on the cover. I'd have to find some other way to get it. Heh! Heh!

How'd we get that price?

Walk into any comic or card shop and you can find a number of price guides that can help you value your collection. But what makes one guide better than another? Everyone claims to be the best, most current, most accurate, most comprehensive...etc. Certainly we feel this way about COMBO, and of course, we might be a little prejudiced. So here, in black and white, for all to see, is exactly how we research and report prices. The following system applies for all our guides. Now you can decide.

Prices are derived after accumulating data from several sources.

First, COMBO's price advisors: Printed above is our list of price advisors for all price guides. Every month these advisors submit current price information on a variety of products based on the most recent retail sales activity in shops, at shows and in direct response advertisements.

On Line Services: COMBO's price guide staff monitors, daily, several on line services, including Comic Net, CompuServe and Prodigy seeking bid and ask prices for comics, non-sport cards, action figures and gaming cards. This information is charted by date. As our printing deadline nears, the chart is reviewed and those prices recorded closest to our deadline are saved with earlier prices discarded.

Conventions/Shows: The COMBO staff attends many comic/card conventions, large and small throughout the year. At each show, one staff member is assigned the responsibility to record sales prices by visiting every vendor table or booth.

Approximately one week before our printing deadline the price information gathered from the above three sources is input into a data basis. Where more than one price quote has been recorded for one item, the most recent quote is given more weight. The price information is accumulated in the data base which is then used to update our price guides.

The process of updating our guides requires a significant investment in time and labor. We believe this investment is necessary in order to provide current and accurate pricing for our readers. It should be noted however, that our price guides, and all others, should be used only as guides and not with the same zeal as one may use New York Stock Exchange quotations.

Comics, cards and figures should be read, admired for their beauty, played with and enjoyed. It's nice that they have some monetary value, which may increase or decrease as time goes by. But let's not get carried away.
